CENTRE COUNTY CENTENNIAL CELEBRATION JULY 25 & 26.

WELCOMED TO BELLEFONTE

Presiding Elder M. L. Smyser and Family Receive a Hearty greeting

IRRESPECTIVE OF DENOMINATION

D. F. Fortney Esq., Greets Him on Behalf of the Town; Dr. H. C Holleway on Behalf of Ministerial Association, and Former Governor Hastings for the Church.

VERY PLEASING MUSICAL PROGRAM

One of the most pleasing events held in Bellefonte for some time took place in the lecture room of the Methodist church Thursday evening. The occasion was the reception tendered to the recently appointed Presiding Elder of the Altoona district, Rev. Martin Luther Smyser and his most estimable family.

A large number of the leading citizens of Bellefonte, irrespective of church denominations were present to receive the man who for the next six years has decided to make Bellefonte his home, during his incumbency of the office of Presiding Elder, which may be considered quite an honor to our little city. It was therefore perfectly proper that our citizens should show their hearty appreciation and give him a cordial welcome.

The meeting was presided over by Rev. W. P. Shriner, the pastor of the church, who introduced Rev. Scott, who made an earnest prayer invoking God's blessing on the meeting.

The opening address of welcome on behalf of the citizens of Bellefonte was made by David F. Fortney Es., one of the town's leading and most successful lawyers, in an address brimful of good humor and sense and bespeaking for the reverend gentleman and his family a most cordial welcome and pleasant stay in Bellefonte.

Next in order was a solo rendered by Miss Marie Meek, daughter of Hon. P. Gray Meek of the Watchman, which was highly appreciated by all present.

Dr. H. C. Holloway, pastor of the Lutheran church, was then introduced and in an appropriate manner extended the greeting of the Ministerial association of Bellefonte.

Rev. Smyser had now been welcomed on behalf of the town and the clergy and it now remained for the church to extend its welcome. No better person for this duty could have been selected than former Governor Hastings, who in his usual excellent style, greeted Rev. Smyser. He recalled early incidents during the time when Rev. Smyser was pastor of this church twenty-five years ago. They then worshipped in the old Methodist church on the hill near the jail. He spoke of the church's growth since then and of the many changes that have taken place and also gave the church remodeling project a good word.

At the close of the Governor's speech a very beautiful duett was rendered by Misses Ella Twitmire and Aurora Moore.

These addresses and hearty words of greeting were fittingly responded to by Rev. Smyser, who felt deeply touched by the cordiality shown. He stated that he was glad to get back to Bellefonte again and mingle with its people. Many of the old faces that he used to know are missing but many new ones have come to take their places. He also recalled many pleasing incidents of his former pastorate here, and of the many pleasant associations formed.

After the meeting a line was formed and everyone pressed forward to personally shake the hand of Rev. Smyser and his family and extend to them a most cordial welcome to Bellefonte. It was indeed a most enjoyable occasion and one that will be long remembered by all those who were in attendance.

Tramps' Bold Work.

Late Friday night Frank Falls, of Sunbury, boarded a freight train on the Readroad with the intention of going to West Milton. Near Lewisburg three tramps entered the box car in which he was riding. After a short conversation the tramps overpowered Falls and robbed him of over eight dollars in cash, a watch, ring, hat and an Odd Fellows' pin. While the train was going at a rapid speed, they pushed Falls from the car at a point below Milton. Fall was severely bruised, but managed to walk to Milton, where he told his story. The train, which was still standing in the yards, was searched. The tramps were seen running away and made their escape. Falls bruises were then dressed.

—Wallace circus passed through Milesburg Tuesday night on their way from Altoona to Williamsport.

STATE COLLEGE PREPS WIN.

Academy Lost Game After Securing Big Lead.

A very interesting game of base ball was played on the Glass Works Meadow Saturday afternoon between the Bellefonte Academy and the Preps from State College. The boys from the hill looked like sure winners in the start as they secured a lead of twelve runs in two innings. Curtin and Otto were in fine form and victory seemed about to perch on the Academy's banner. But the old saying that there is many a slip between the cup and the lip came true in this case. The College boys put in Sharp, Wood and one other player from the first 'Varsity team and the result was a change of tune, result in a victory for State. The score was as follows:

WILL BE DIVIDED

Centre County Will be in the Northern Diocese.

By a vote of 112 to 56 the convention of the Central Pennsylvania diocese of the Episcopal church at Scranton decided Thursday to divide the diocese. Bishop Talbot declared himself in favor of the division conditional upon the Episcopal endowment fund being increased to $100,000. It is now $41,000.

This action creates the northern diocese comprising the counties of Potter, Tioga, Bradford, Susquehanna, Wayne, Pike, Monroe, Luzerne, Wyoming, Lackawanna Columbia, Montour, Union, Centre, Clinton, Lycoming, Sullivan, and Northumberland. These have a combined population of about 1,000,000, leaving in the southern diocese a population of nearly 1,500,000. The uestion on the division was discussed for several hours before a vote was taken.

The next convention will be held at Pottsville.

Formerly Lived in Centre County.

Katharine Barnhart, wife of James M. Kimport, died at her home in Ronceverte, West Virginia, on Saturday, after a brief illness from gastritis. The deceased was born at Curtin Works, Centre County Pa., on October 14, 1826, being at the time of death in her 73d year. The major portion of her life was spent in Hollidaysburg, where her husband was for many years successfully engaged in the clothing business. She was a devout member of the Baptist church and was a lady of many graces and dignities of character. She was the mother of two daughters, viz: Mrs. William H. Banks, of Huntingdon, West Virginia, and the late Mrs. Joseph Condron, of Hollidaysburg. Mrs. G. I, Davis, of Hollidaysburg, and the late Mrs John Curtin, of this place were sisters. The remains were taken to Hollidaysburg where the interment took place Monday afternoon.

Killed at Harrisburg.

Roland Gates, son of William Gates, of Rock Springs, Centre County, was run over by a train Friday night while at work in the yard of the Pennsylvania railroad company at Harrisburg. His injuries were so severe that the doctors were compelled to amputate his right arm Saturday morning. The shock of the operation was to severe for him and he died from the effects of it.

The unfortunate young man was born at Rock Springs and was about 30 years of age. He leaves a wife and one child. His wife is a daughter of Christopher Guise, of Graysville.

The remains passed through here Monday afternoon for Rock Springs where the funeral took place Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock, Rev. Love, of the Presbyterian church officiating. Interment in the Graysville cemetery.

Died at Millheim.

A very sad death occurred at Millheim Tuesday evening, Mrs. Buck, wife of H W. Buck, pastor of the Evangelical church of that place, passed away at 9 o'clock on that evening at the parsonage on Spring street. She was 67 years of age and her death was due to pneumonia. She leaves to mourn her loss, a husband, two sons, Harry and Thomas, and one daughter, Laura. The deceased was a kindly christian lady and will be greatly missed in the community where she was a great power for good. The interment will take place Friday at Lewisburg.

—The summer girl now bursts upon our vision.

FOR LOVE OF COUNTRY.

Lieutenant George L. Jackson Dies in Far Off Manila.

SUCCUMBED TO BRIGHT'S DISEASE.

Served During the Spanish-American War in Co. B, 5th Regiment, Pennsylvania Volunteers—Appointed a 2nd Lieutenant in Volunteer Army, and Assigned to 47th U. S. Volunteers in August, 1899.

WAS BORN IN BELLEFONTE IN 1869.

It was with the profoundest regret that the news of the death of Lieutenant Geo. L. Jackson was received here Wednesday morning. The family have received no official information as yet, and the only news is that published in the city papers, in which General McArthur notifies the war department of Lieutenant Jackson's death, which occurred on Monday, May 21st. of Bright's disease. There is no doubt of the authenticity of the report, and Bellefonte is again called upon to mourn the loss of a brave and patriotic young man, whose life has been sacrificed that his country's flag might continue to wave and his nation's honor remain unsullied.

Only Tuesday his brothers received a letter from him in which he stated that he was recovering and would soon join his regiment again. Such, however, was not to be the case, for the Supreme Commander had decreed otherwise, and he has gone to answer to the final roll call on high.

Lieut. George L. Jackson was born in Bellefonte in 1869, and was a son of the late George W. Jackson, banker and business man of this place. He was educated at the Bellefonte Academy, and on leaving school became the manager of the Phoenix flouring mills, and later was a clerk in the bank of Jackson, Hastings & Company.

Lieutenant Jackson's military career gave promise of a bright future, for he had a great passion for military life. On July 7th, 1894, he enlisted in Co. B, 5th Regiment, N. G. P., as a private. and in a short time rose to the rank of 1st Lieutenant. When the Spanish-American war broke out he was clerking in his father's bank, but at once dropped everything and was mustered into the United States' service May 11th, 1898, as 1st Lieutenant of Co. B, 5th Regiment, Pennsylvania Volunteers. He was mustered out in November 1898, and in August 1899 was appointed a 2nd Lieutenant in Co. I, 47th Regiment, U. S. Volunteers, and with his regiment sailed for the far off Philippines in the following November. His military record there has been an excellent one, and it has been reliably reported that he would have shortly been recommended for promotion.

Deceased is survived by his mother, Mrs. Jennie M. Jackson, of Oakland, Md., and one sister and three brothers, namely Mrs. George Brew, of Oakland, Md., and W. Fred, Harry and Maurie, all of Bellefonte.

It is not known yet just what disposition will be made of the remains although they will probably be brought to Bellefonte for final interment.

Lieutenent Jackson has a host of friends wherever he was known who sincerely mourn his untimely death and who share in, and sympathize with the Jackson family in their sad bereavement.

About the New Stamp Book.

It is announced that postal authorities at Washington have discovered that the paraffine paper used for the new postage stamp book will not perform the work expected of it. This paper prevents adhesion only for a short time, probably a week, and then appears to lose its effect entirely and the stamps become glued to the pages as though no preparations was employed to prevent adhesion. The recent spell of warm weather has brought this defect to light, and steps are to be taken at once to remedy it. It has been given out that no more books will be issued with paraffine leaves and that a certain kind of paper is to be used in its stead, which, it is thought will prevent adhesion.

Memorial Day Orators.

We have learned of the following orators who have been selected for Memorial Day: Col. Wilbur F. Reeder at Spring Mills and Millheim; W. Harrison Walker at Kylertown and Philipsburg; David F. Fortney at Cedar Springs, Clinton county; Capt. Hugh S. Taylor at Howard; Clement Dale at Martha Furnace; Rev. W. P. Shriner at Curtin Works and John G. Love at Milesburg.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From our regular correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 22, 1900.

Nothing more disgusting has been seen in National politics than the exploiting of the three Boer envoys, who are now in Washington, by anti-administration Senators and Representatives, to try to embarrass President McKinley and to make, democratic political capital among voters who sympathize with the Boers in the unfortunate war in South Africa. The men who are working this game really care nothing for the Boers, but they think they see an opportunity to use the envoys to help the democrats,, and they have so little patriotism that they have undertaken the dirty job. This is a new thing in American politics, but as the common sense of the country is behind the neutrality of the administration, it is not likely to accomplish what its projectors hope for. Heretofore, it has been the proud boast of Americans that no matter how greatly we differed upon matters of domestic policy, we always unanimously backed up the foreign policy of our government. The men who have destroyed our right to make that boast have not done a job to be proud of. President McKinley will give the same recognition to the Boer envoys as would be given to private citizens of any foreign country, who visited Washington, no more and no less. They have no official status in this country any more than they had in Europe, where they made a number of ineffectual attempts to secure official recognition, before coming to the U. S.

President McKinley has accepted invitations to attend the reunion of the Society of the Army of the Potomac, at Fredericksburg, Va,, May 25th; the unveiling of the monument to the dead of both armies, at Antietam, May 30th, and the 34th annual encampment of the Pennsylvania G. A. R., at Gettysburg, June 6th.

Senator McCumber made a speech favoring our retention of the Philippines, in which he said: "That it is to our commercial and financial interests to retain them the most ardent opponent of the Administration cannot properly deny. That our naval interests demand their retention must be admitted. Who would throw aside this wonderful opportunity at the present time? The objectors to American expansion claim that the same nation, which in May, went to war for humanity, in December, went to war for conquest and greed. Have they not faith in the honor and integrity of their own country? Have they not faith in the sense of justice of the American people? Then, act this faith and trust your own people."

Senator Chandler has been instructed by the Committee on elections, of which he is Chairman, to push the resolution declaring Mr. Clark not to have been legally elected to the Senate, notwithstanding Mr. Clark's resignation. The resolution would probably have been allowed to die had Mr. Clark contented himself with resigning, but his little trick of having himself appointed by the acting Governor, to fill the vacancy made by his resignating has offended the dignity of Senators, and many of them express a determination to see that he doesn't get a seat on any such credentials. The later appointment of ex-Congressman Martin Maginnis, by Gov. Smith, is not seriously considered by many Senators.

Congress has formally accepted the fine marble statue of Gen. Grant, representing him standing in full uniform, presented by the G. A. R. The statue was unveiled by Miss Sartoris, a granddaughter of Gen. Grant, and Mrs. Grant and Mrs Sartoris were present.

Secretary Gage has sent out notice that atthe $25,000,000 of 2 per cent bonds, payable the government's pleasure, will be redeemed on presentation, and that interest thereon will cease September 1. Republican administrations pay bonds; democratic administrations sell bonds. Quite a difference.

The adjourment of Congress early in June, has been practically determined upon. The House will be ready for adjournment any time after the first week in June, and the present impression is that the adjournment will take place somewhere between the tenth and the fifteenth, the date depending on the Senate.

An attempt will be made to get a vote on the Nicaragua Canal bill, which was favorably reported last week, in the Senate this week, but if there is a disposition to prolong the debate, the attempt will hardly succeed. Some of the best friends of the bill would prefer that it be not passed at this session for one or another reason, although they will, of course, vote for it, if a vote can be reached in a reasonable time. If it is voted upon, it will pass by a large majority.

Fourth-Assistant Postmaster General Bristow, who is now in Cuba in carge of the investigation of the Postal System, has ample authority to reorganize the entire system, and make any changes he deems wise.

JUDGE LOVE REVERSED.

Jackson, Hastings & Co. Win Their Suit Against Jackson Estate.

A RINGING OPINION DELIVERED

By the Supreme Court In this Now Celebrated Case—Error of Judge Love's Reasoning Plainly Shown Up.

COSTS PLACED ON APPELLANT.

Following is the opinion of the Court in the celebrated case :

George W. Jackson and defendants, by written agreement, on the 1st of September, 1897, formed a co-partnership in the banking business at Bellefonte, Centre County, Pa. On the 22nd of October of same year Jackson died. On August 10th, 1898, his administrators filed this bill, praying: 1. For a decree of dissolution. 2. For an account. 3 For a receiver. The defendants denied the right to a decree in plaintiffs' favor on any one of the prayers, avering that the agreement stipulated for the continuance of the partnership for the term of ten years from its date, and that the death of a member during that period should not work a dissolution, but that his interest should remain in the partnership, his representatives, however, to have no voice nor control in the management; his estate, nevertheless, to receive six per cent. on the amount of capital invested by him, and further, to receive such share of the earnings as the deceased would have been entitled to had he lived. It was further averred, that while negotiations looking to a closing out of the entire interest of Jackson had been opened between the parties, after his death, they were still pending when the bill was filed, and they, therefore, rested for defence on the written agreement. Evidence was taken on motion for preliminary decree, as to whether there had been as a fact, a parol agreement between plaintiffs and defendants for a dissolution, and as to whether the deceased partner at his death was insolvent. The Court below does not find, positively, that there was a parol dissolution of the partnership after the death of Jackson, but says defendants considered it dissolved. Further, it found that Jackson, at his death, was practically insolvent, and, in substance, held, as a matter of law, that an insolvent member of a partnership could not tie up his estate or part of it by a partnership agreement of this nature so as to protect it from possession for purposes of administration by his legal representatives; that such agreement was, in effect, a fraud upon creditors. It was, therefore, decreed, that the partnership be dissolved; that defendants account, and that plaintiffs have full access to the books, accounts and papers of the partnership. Further, that if the parties failed to arrive at a satisfactory accounting and settlement within sixty days, that then an expert accountant would be appointed by the Court as an assistant to the Court.

From this decree, it necessarily followed that if defendants did not submit a receiver would have to be appointed to enforce it, which was the altercative prayer of the bill.

We now have this appeal by defendants, who assign for error the action of the Court :

As to the fact found by the Court, that there was, by parol, an agreement for a dissolution of the partnership, there is no evidence worthy the name to sustain the finding. There were propositions from both sides for settlement, not acceded to by either, and no conclusion reached; this is so manifest that it would be a waste of time to narrate the evidence bearing upon the question. Necessarily, the partnership was dissolved, as concerned any further personal participation in the control or management by Jackson, and the agreement positively stipulated that in that event his representatives were to be excluded during the term. The plaintiffs in their negotiations sought a settlement for his interest immediately; defendants were not averse to such settlement, but they were wide apart as to the amount to be paid for the interest of the deceased partner; on this their minds never met. The averments of the bill, especially the ninth and tenth paragraphs, show such was the view of the plaintiffs.

As to the fact, that the estate of Jackson is insolvent, and therefore such an agreement was a fraud upon his creditors, the reasoning of the learned judge is singularly inconclusive. Admit as a fact (which is at least doubtful) that Jackson, at the date of the agreement, when he bound himself as the other three partners did, was insolvent, there is no averment that the others had knowledge of such fact, or that there was any fraud or collusion between them. Why, then, even if Jackson intended to tie up this part of his estate in a perfectly fair and business-like agreement, should they suffer? But is it a fraud, actual or constructive, upon creditors, for a debtor to enter into a partnership agreement in a legitimate business, with a prospect of gain, for a term of years? The extent, value and place of the investment can be known with proximate certainty by all creditors. Nothing is concealed. The investment of capital in a co-partnership in the banking business was as open as a loan secured by a mortgage of record payable in ten years, or the lease of a farm to a tenant for the same period. It in no proper sense put the investment out of the reach of creditors; at most, it only modified or changed the form of remedy to reach it. The learned judge of the Court below has cited no authority in support of his view; we are confident there are none. All our cases are directly to the contrary. "Stipulations in articles of co-partnership for the continuance of the firm after the death of a member and until the consent of all the partners is given to a dissolution are valid and binding, and on the death of any individual partner will prevent a dissolution." Leal's Appeal, 105 Pa., 505. This quotation is but a summary of the law as laid down by this Court seventy-five years ago in Gratz vs. Bayard, 11 S. & R. 41, and followed ever since, the last case being Wilcox vs. Derickson, 168 Pa., 335. All the text writers, Story on Partnership, Teller on Executors, Collier on Partnerships, Williams on Executors, state the law to be substantially as quoted. The decree does not rest on either reason or authority. If it were carried to its probable result the Court would take possession of the bank through its own officer, as receiver, and wind up its affairs in the interest of creditors. This is a business Courts generally seek to avoid. In the interests of the public, sometimes they take possession of carrying corporations and in rare cases of business partnership, but only with great reluctance. There is no reason why, even in a doubtful case, they should dissolve a perfectly solvent banking partnership in the interest of importunate creditors or complaining representatives of a deceased member, in the face of an expressed stipulation by all the partners to the contrary. As both have treated this as a final hearing, the decree is reversed, and the bill is dismissed at costs of appellant.

THE NIMROD OF SINNEMAHONING.

Rev. Crittenden Tells Some Interesting Experiences of His Latest Missionary Trip.

During my fourteen days absence I passed one very pleasant hour with my good and faithful, venerable friend, Seth Nelson, with his wife and family at Round Island, Clinton County Pa.

It was one of the happiest experiences of my life in the service of the Lord. I am sure the readers of our home paper will be pleased to read a few particulars of interest; many more could be given. This aged Godly man is in his ninety-first year in good health of body and mind and heart. He is happy and said to me: "I am getting nearer home every day."

I have named him "the Nimrod of Sinnemahoning." For some years he kept a record of the game he killed beginning in 1827. I give you the summary below, true every figure and not including all: Elk, 22; deer, 428; bears, 41; panthers, 12 wolves, 4. His wife is still living, active and happy in the eighty-sixth year of her age. They have reared a family of six daughters and one son to habits of industry and honesty; two girls and two boys died, making eleven in all. The names of the six daughters are Sallie Ann, Julia Ann, Lizzie Ann, Mary Ann and Lucy Ann.

I give you also the figures covering the past twelve days of Bible and Bible school work in East and West Keating townships. Forty-two Bibles and testaments distributed by sale at cost or by gift to the destitute poor; two Bible schools opened three others aided 5 short sermons 6 addresses 115 families visited over 40 miles on foot and engaged certainly more than 250 persons in searching the Scriptures at home and finding the passages most "profitable for instruction in righteousness."

What encourages me most of all is that some of these boys and girls naturally bright and healthy, whose parents can neither read nor write, will some day come forth to be among our best men and women.

—Edward Parsons, the fish dealer, is sporting a handsome new delivery wagon. It is all right and shows that Ed is determined to be up-to-date.

—June the 14th will be flag day—the one hundred and twenty-third anniversary of the adoption of the Stars and stripes by the Continental Congress.

—The Fifth regiment band is now completed and has received instruments. It is composed of ten pieces with Frank D. Leipold as chief musician. The band is located at Clearfield and by the time the regiment goes into camp will be in excellent shape to render martial music.

Chronic Nasal Catarrh.

Poisons every breath that is drawn into the lungs. There is procurable from any druggist the remedy for the cure of this trouble. A small quantity of Ely's Cream Balm placed into the nostrils spreads over an inflamed and angry surface, relieving immediately the painful inflammation, cleanses, heals and cures. A cold in the head vanishes immediately. Sold by druggists or will be mailed for 50 cents. by Ely Brothers, 56 Warren Street, New York.

STATE-BUCKNELL MEET

Interrupted by Rain With state in the Lead—Events to be Decided.

Lewisburg, May 18,

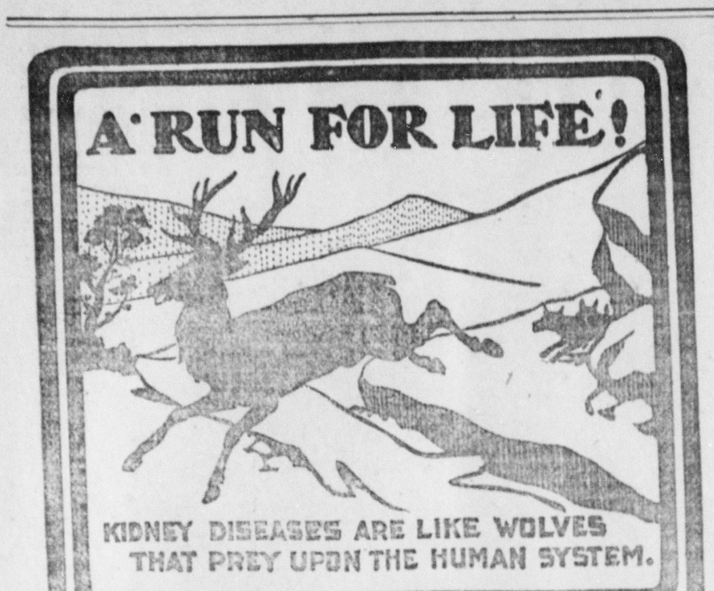
The annual dual athletic meet between Bucknell and State College, which was held to-day on the college, campus, was unexpectedly interrupted by rain. Nevertheless all of the track and most of the field events were pulled off before the storm came on.

The remaining events, high and broad jumps and the pole vault, will be contested to-morrow morning. The principal feature of the day was the two-mile run Fetzer, of Bucknell, finishing a lap ahead of Morris, of State. At the time of interruption State had 40 points, Bucknell 32. Summary:

100 yards dash—Trial heat won by Martin, State; second, Mitchell, Bucknell. Time 10 3-5 seconds.

100 yards dash—Trial heat won by Pollock, State, second, Tiffany, Bucknell. Time, 10½ seconds.

One mile run—Won by Sterling, Bucknell; second,



THERE IS BUT ONE SURE CURE FOR KIDNEY TROUBLES

KID-NE-OIDS

If your Kidneys are not just right, look out, there is danger and death to follow. Serious troubles may seem very far off at present but they will soon overwhelm you unless you stop their progress.

Morrow's Kid-ne-oids are a scientific discovery for the cure of all diseases arising from disordered Kidneys, Poor Nerves and Thin, Watery and Impoverished Blood. They are an unfailing Kidney tonic, nerve restorer and blood builder.

Kid-ne-oids are yellow tablets and are never sold in less quantities than a box at 50c.

Morrow's Liverlax cures constipation, biliousness and costiveness. Sells for 25c. a box at drug stores.

Kid-ne-oids and Liverlax are manufactured by John Morrow & Co., Chemists, Springfield, Ohio

Mrs. Newman, 220 Jay street, Lock Haven, Pa., says:—"As to the value of Morrow's Kid-ne-oids I can cheerfully attest. I gave them to my daughter who has been troubled for several years with symptoms of kidney disorder. She suffered with a constant dull pain just over the region of the kidneys. She would be restless and could not sleep. Since I gave her Morrow's Kid-ne-oids her troubles have been greatly relieved."

At all drug stores and F. Potts Green's.

ALL TEACHERS URGED.

To Attend the State Association to be Held in Williamsport.

To teachers, directors and friends of education, in Pennsylvania:

I desire to call your special attention to the next meeting of the Pennsylvania State Teachers' association, which will be held this year in the city of Williamsport, Pa., July 3 to 6 inclusive.

Every enrolled member of this association will receive a copy of the addresses and other proceedings, not only of the State Teachers' association, but of the City, Borough and Township Superintendents' association, and also of the State School Directors' convention, thus getting the very best thought along these different lines in the state.

I appeal to the friends of education in Pennsylvania to enroll in large numbers. There are over 26,000 teachers in the state in the public schools alone, and the number of superintendents, teachers, directors and other friends of education enrolled should not be less than 10,000.

The trip to Williamsport is a pleasant one, it is an ideal place to meet—fine hotels, its citizens noted for their hospitality; elegant drives, and the excursion to Eaglesmere will be a great attraction. The program is excellent; turn out in large numbers and show your interest in the great educational association of your state.

If you find it utterly impossible to attend the meeting send your enrollment fee of $1 to Prof. David S. Keck, treasurer, Kutztown, Pa., who will promptly send you a certificate of membership.

Let me not plead in vain for our dear old commonwealth to make this meeting a record breaker.

JOHN A. M. PASSMORE,
President.

Our Contribution to Paris.

Were each American visitor to spend only $100 in Paris—and very few will come off so cheaply—still the good hotel keepers, merchants and dealers of all sorts would come in for $100,000,000 of American money. Even if their profits be only 10 or 15 per cent they will have cause for sound rejoicing.

Grange Meeting.

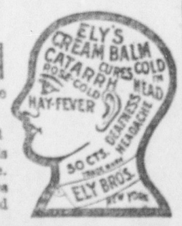
Centre County Pomona Grange, No. 13, will meet in the hall of Victor Grange, at Oak Hall, June 1st, at 9:30 a. m., 1900. All Fourth Degree members are invited to attend. This will be a very important meeting. All come.

D. M. CAMPBELL, Sec'y.

Nasal CATARRH

In all its stages there should be cleanliness.

Ely's Cream Balm cleanses, soothes and heals the diseased membrane. It cures catarrh and drives away a cold in the head quickly.



Cream Balm is placed into the nostrils, spreads over the membrane and is absorbed. Relief is immediate and a cure follows. It is not drying—does not produce sneezing. Large Size, 50 cents at Druggists or by mail; Trial Size, 10 cents by mail.

MORE EVIDENCE AGAINST NEELY.

Deputy Auditor Reeves Confesses and Returns $4,500.

Havana, May 19.—W. H. Reeves, deputy auditor of the island, has made a confession and given up $4,500 given to him by C. F. W. Neely, the arrested financial agent of posts at Havana, to perform certain services the day he left. It is claimed that $1,400 more will be recovered. Those who know the situation best say that the confession of Reeves was the only link required in the chain of evidence, although the principal statements he has made will require investigation before they can be acted upon, as it is generally believed that his accusation is of such a startling character as to render it unwise to proceed before being absolutely sure of other evidence to corroborate it.

Another charge against Neely is that he has defrauded the customs out of several thousand dollars worth of duties by importing, nominally for postal use, large quantities of paper, which was afterwards sold to a printing house in Havana.

With the confessions of Reeves and Rich, supplemented by those of the stamp clerks and by the statements of the Baracoa postmaster, it is considered that the evidence against Neely is complete.

Gen. Wood says that the report from Muncie, Ind., that nearly $2,000,000 worth of stamps have been printed there and sent for distribution to Cuban postoffices can be regarded as a canard. It is believed now that the whole story is known and that the amount of the defalcations will fall between $100,000 and $125,000.

Sunday Papers Denounced.

St. Louis, May 19.—At the Presbyterian assembly yesterday the report of the committee on Sabbath desecration was discussed. A resolution was adopted commending President McKinley and Secretary of State Hay for recommending that the exhibit of the United States at the Paris exposition be closed on Sunday, even though is was not successful. The advertising in and reading of the Sunday newspapers on the Sabbath were declared to be one of the worst forms of Sunday desecration. A resolution was adopted requesting the proprietors of the St. Louis daily newspapers to refrain from printing reports of the assembly in Sunday editions.

Royal Blue Locomotive Wrecked.

Philadelphia, May 19.—The locomotive of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad Royal Blue express train was wrecked yesterday afternoon at Jenkintown, Pa., on the Philadelphia and Reading railway, which tracks the Baltimore and Ohio uses between here and Bound Brook, N. J., killing the fireman of the engine and injuring a number of persons standing at the Jenkintown station. The name of the dead fireman is Charles Robinson, of Jersey City. The locomotive jumped the track, smashed into the baggage room of the station and then turned over on its left side. The fireman was crushed under the heavy mass of iron. The engineer escaped with slight injuries.

To Pay Confederate Soldiers' Losses.

Washington, May 19.—For the first time since the rebellion the house yesterday passed a measure to pay Confederate soldiers for losses growing out of the civil war. It was a bill introduced by Mr. Cox (Tenn.) to pay the Confederate soldiers who surfendered at Appomattox for the loss of horses and other personal effects taken from them in violation of the terms of Lee's capitulation to Grant, by which officers and men of Lee's army were allowed to retain their baggage, side arms and horses. The bill originally carried $200,000, but the specific sum was stricken out and the appropriation was made indefinite.

"Kid" McCoy's Easy Victory.

New York, May 19.—Charles ("Kid") McCoy easily defeated Australian Dan Creedon at the Broadway Athletic club last night before one of the largest crowds that has ever assembled in the club. Thirty-four seconds of the sixth round was all the time needed to turn the trick and McCoy could have brought the fight to a speedier conclusion had he been so disposed. Creedon made a very poor showing. At no time did he land a blow that hurt McCoy.

The Old Hymns.

There's lots of music in 'em—the hymns of long ago—
And when some gray-haired brother sings the ones I used to know,
I sorter want to take a hand! I think o days gone by,
"On Jordan's stormy banks I stand and cast a wistful eye!"

There's lots of music in 'em—those dear sweet hymns of old—
With visions bright of lands of light, and shining streets of gold;
And I hear 'em singing—singing, where mem'ry dreaming stands,
"From Greenland's icy mountains to India's coral strands."

An, so I love the old hymns, and when my time shall come,
Before the light has left me, and my singing lips are dumb,
If I can hear 'em sing them then, I'll pass without a sigh
To "Canaan's fair and happy land where my possessions lie."

Forcible Facts.

One-sixth of the deaths from disease are due to consumption. Ninety-eight per cent. of all those who have used Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery for "weak lungs," have been perfectly and permanently cured. Cornelius McCawley, of Leechburg, Armstrong Co., Pa., had in all eighty-one hemorrhages. He says: "My doctor did all he could for me but could not stop the hemorrhages, and all gave me up to die with consumption." What doctors could not do "Golden Medical Discovery" did It stopped the hemorrhages and cured their cause. This is one case out of thousands. Investigate the facts.

"Under the American Flag."

One of the advertisements of the New York Central railroad reads: "From St. Michael to Manila, 11,974 miles. And the Stars and Stripes affording protection to American commerce all the way." That's nothing but a railroad advertisement, to be sure, but doesn't it send a little thrill of pride along your spinal column? Of course if you are an anti "important" it doesn't for the anti has no backbone, but the patriotic American citizens likes to see it proclaimed from the house tops that the United states flag is known outside the confines of America, and that where it floats it announces to the world that the most powerful republic on earth stands ready to protect the people and interests it represents.—Springfield, (Mass.) EARLY American visitors to the Exposition had a chance to see how the Parisians conduct a municipal election.

THE best remedy for official stealing is the speedy punishment of the thief. The administration should not forget this in dealing with the Cuban postal officials.

IT is now said that Mr. Towne is merely a dummy candidate for Vice President, put up by request of Mr. Bryan, to be withdrawn after the Kansas City ticket is named.

GENERAL WOOD declares that the postal service of Cuba is in a high state of efficiency and that it should not be blamed as a whole on account of the acts of a few rascals. This is good sense.

IN addition to the plague, the Asiatic cholera is now raging in India, and the deaths in some localities are so numerous that the authorities are days behind in the work of burying the bodies.

IT seems a little queer to read of the arrival in New York of a Russian expedition on the way to the newly discovered gold fields in Northeastern Siberia, but they are merely traveling by the shortest available route.

SOME of Chicago's employes have been beating the water meters of the city out of a few hundred thousand dollars, in the interest of a few large consumers. Another proof that cash registers do not make men honest.

UNSURPASSED nerve is that of the preacher who is in a Nebraska jail, charged with bigamy, in offering to compromise by paying the expenses of one of the women who claims to be his wife back to her English home.

UNLESS present plans fail, Congress will adjourn on June 11, just long enough before the Philadelphia convention to permit the Republican members to close up their business and attend. They will undoubtedly add to the life and go of the occasion.

DON'T forget this fact during the campaign: Senator Jones, chairman of the Democratic National Committee, offered an amendment to the Puerto Rican tariff bill to return the duties on sugar imported from that island "to the persons from whom they were collected." The sugar trust had paid $637,551 of these duties and if the amendment of the Democratic Senator had not been opposed by the Republicans, then he would have caused the return of that sum to the trust!

A MIX UP OF LAW AND POLITICS.

In another column of this paper we print the decision of the Supreme Court of this State in the case of Jackson's Administrators against the Banking House of Jackson, Hastings & Company of this place.

The opinion and decree of the Supreme Court is an emphatic and staggering blow at what appeared to be a bold attempt to injure or ruin a banking house because of the judge's political animosity to a member of the banking company at a time when a heated political contest, in which he was taking an active part, was waging in this county. It has been the boast of Judge Love, up to the decision in the banking case, that he had not been reversed by the Supreme Court on any case carried to that tribunal from this county. Judge Love's ability is admitted, but he cannot mix up law and politics without making a failure of both. Justice Dean, in delivering the opinion of the Supreme Court, after reciting the facts of the case, states, that Judge Love's decree "does not rest on either reason or authority and if it were carried to its logical result, the Court would take possession of the bank through its own officer as receiver and wind up its affairs." This action might have caused a panic or run upon many a bank and untold disaster to stockholders and depositors might have followed. A run upon one bank might have started a run upon all the banking institutions in our town and a general financial panic might have followed from the action of the Court, which action, Justice Dean says, "was founded neither on reason nor authority." The solidity and high standing of all the banking institutions in Bellefonte, however, made such a probable disaster impossible. As to the facts upon which the Judge relied in his effort to take possession of the bank, the Supreme Court say, "There is no evidence worthy the name to sustain the finding." In another place the Supreme Court say that the law controlling the issue was laid down seventy-five years ago and followed ever since.

A man of Judge Love's legal ability could hardly have made such a blunder, as the Supreme Court point out, from ignorance of the law. He has now been on the bench nearly six years. Litigation in this county has not been of that character or importance as to make it profitable for litigants to carry their cases to the highest tribunal. Many of the important cases that have been taken up have been tried by judges called in from other districts, but in those appealed from the decision of Judge Love, this is the only instance in this county where he has been reversed, and it is evidently the only case in which Judge Love's political prejudices took the place of his legal judgment. It is a dangerous thing to any community having valuable property rights which may, at any time, become involved in litigation, to have a judge on the bench whose disposition is to use the great power in his hands either to reward favorites or punish political opponents. Such tendency in our courts is destructive of the very foundations of organized society. The judge on the bench should be as far removed from partisan politics as right is removed from wrong. It is impossible for a judge to be at the head of a partisan political machine, to deal out post-offices to partisan favorites, appoint census enumerators from among his political retainers or to grant liquor licenses to his ward leaders, without doing injustice to somebody when political favorites and political opponents come into his court to have their property rights adjudicated. Judge Love is paid by the State and was selected by the people to administer the law and not either to serve a political boss or to attempt to become a political boss himself. He receives a salary of $4,000 a year and his holding court for other judges, with mileage, probably increases his income to $5,000 per year. Scarcely one-fifth of his time is occupied in holding court in Centre County. Centre County has always boasted of the high order of learning and ability of her judiciary. From Burnside and Huston to Mayer and Orvis a long line of judges have adorned the bench by their learning and dignity of character. All good citizens are anxious to see the high standard maintained, but he who undertakes to be both politician and judge, while wearing the judicial ermine, must fail in both.

THE G. A. R. PENSION BILL.

The G. A. R. pension bill has been recently signed by the President and is now the law of the land. The bill as passed and approved is practically the same in construction and purport as it was when first introduced by that body. The act accomplished two purposes.

It provides in the first place that, in determining the pensionable disability of a veteran under the dependent pension act, "each and every infirmity shall be duly considered and the aggregate of the disabilities shown be rated." Its second purpose is to permit a widow with "an actual net income not exceeding $250 a year" to obtain a pension provided she furnishes proof of her husband's death and establishes the fact that he was a veteran. At present widows of veterans are barred from the benefits of the law if they have an income of $96 a year. The G. A. R. is now chiefly interested in having the amended law enforced and construed as the soldiers desire that it should be.

Pension Commissioner Evans is making preparations to carry out the provisions of the new law. He says that a rough estimate is that the law will cost the government $2,000,000 or $3,000,000 additional each year. General Sickles, of the G. A. R., says he does not believe it will add $1,000,000 to the pension disbursements during the next fiscal year, owing to the slowness in adjudicating claims. He thinks that $2,000,000 will cover the extra cost during any fiscal year. Whatever the cost may be, it is a measure of justice and one that should have been adopted long ago. No one who is human and grateful will begrudge to the dependent veteran and the soldier's widow a modest income from the National treasury.

THEY SHOULD INFORM THEMSELVES.

Those who object to the sale of light liquors at the army canteens should procure a copy of the regulations, which can be had by writing to the Secretary of War, and then attack the system and the administration with some sort of knowledge.

The regulations provide that no officer or private soldier shall be detailed to sell drinks, and that nothing can be sold except beer, light wines and "soft drinks." The sale of beer is limited to week-days; it must be consumed upon the premises, and the practice known as "treating" is not permitted.

The sale of beer is left to the discretion of the commanding officer "whenever he is satisfied that giving to the troops the opportunity of obtaining such beverage within the post limits will prevent them resorting for strong intoxicants to places without such limits, and tends to promote temperance and discipline among them."

Gambling is forbidden, but the sale of tea, coffee, non-alcoholic drinks, soup, sandwiches, etc., is permitted. Reading and recreation rooms, billiard and pool tables are provided, and all forms of games, with a supply of newspapers, magazines and books, which are paid for out of the profits of the exchange.

RUDYARD KIPLING is telling the English what awful things will happen if they do not annex the South African republics, which reminds us of the great editor who always advocated what he knew was going to be done, and gained the credit of having done it.

WHENEVER Philippine news gets too dull the enterprising newsgatherers over there discover a new native plot to massacre the whites in Manila. Living in the tropics may make men physically lazy, but it evidently does not affect them mentally.

THE American voters have always resented the efforts to substitute fiction for facts. They will not change their policy this year.

THE ROLL OF HONOR.

Memorial Day Recalls Names of the Nation's Heroes.

Thirty five years ago the war was declared at an end, and it is a matter of thankfulness that the nation, preserved by such a costly sacrifice, has never been menaced since by a domestic foe.

As memory recalls in succession on Memorial day the names of the valiant men who have fallen we are more and more impressed with the magnitude of the work they aided to consummate. Note the roll of individual dead, illumined with brilliant deeds and records, all along the vista of time from 1861 down to the present day! The loyal Lyon, the intrepid Ellsworth, the eloquent Baker, the accomplished McPherson, the inflexible Thomas, the manly Fairchilds, the patriotic McDowell, the fiery Hooker, the dashing Kilpatrick, the brave and impetuous Custer, the thoughtful Meade, the conscientious Burnside, the scholarly Garfield, the organizer and inscrutable McClellan, the matchless Logan, the superb Hancock, the peerless Grant, the invincible Sheridan and the unequaled Sherman. Not alone are these familiar and oft repeated names remembered on Memorial day, although their services entitle them to the exalted distinction they hold in the minds and hearts of a grateful people, for even these gifted generals, without the rank and file, who executed their plans and so contributed to their individual fame and glory, would have remained comparatively unknown beyond their friends and the institutions that prepared them for their work.

And if the language of panegyric may be appropriately used when referring to the leaders in statesmanship and war whose genius directed the movements of the citizen soldiery who gave their lives that the nation might be saved, what language can be used that shall give proper praise to the humble heroes who slumber in forgotten and neglected graves whose ashes are mingled with the southern soil and also to those who survived the mighty conflict? The empty sleeves of those who returned, their bent forms, their gray locks and their unsteady steps are all reminders of what they suffered and endured.—Selected.

OUR FORMER GLORY ON THE SEA.

In the early years of this Republic our plentiful and prosperous shipping gave us rank with the greatest nations, as well as wealth, power and prestige. The intrepid American seaman, as well as the ships of unequalled grace and swiftness that he sailed all over the broad oceans, were the admiration and the envy of all mankind. Americans who have lived their alloted three score years and ten remember with aglow and a thrill the prestige of the American sailor and the American ship in the fifties. But since these days the American clippers have faded from the seas, history and legend alone recording the brilliant and enduring achievements of our countrymen in the merchant shipping service.

There has departed with our shipping one of the greatest money-making industries with which the country ever was blessed, and our national neglect has built great powerful fleets of foreign ships that annually earn hundreds of millions of dollars at the expense of the American people. More than that, these powerful merchant ships and their experienced men increase the naval strength of their governments, at the same time perpetuating the dangerous weakness of the United States upon the sea.

A bill to remedy all this, a bill to revive the glory, the grandeur and the greatness of the United States in all the great ports of the world, a bill to turn our foreign carrying over to American ships, now hangs upon each of the Congressional calendars, favorably reported, but unacted upon. Here is the time—here is the opportunity—for an eloquent tongue, an influential orator and a pre-eminent statesman to induce Congress before adjournment to do its manifest duty by American shipping. The hour has struck—where is the man?

WELLS STEPS DOWN AND OUT

How Machine Politics Has Helped to Ruin the Dairy Interest in the State.

FARMERS DEMAND HAMILTON'S HEAD

The Philadelphia Machine Torn to Pieces by the English Affair—Great Mass Meeting to be Held to Oppose Official Blackmail—How the "Pull" of Two Machine Leaders Kept an Unworthy Official in the Dairy and Food Department.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

Harrisburg, May 22.—The exposures in connection with the oleomargarine fraud continue to attract the greatest attention among farmers and business men. The past week witnessed the stepping down of Levi Wells, the dairy and food commisioner, whose resignation was forced by the exposures at Philadelphia and elsewhere. After he had left the office on the following day Wells issued a statement declaring that he had conducted the office in a first class manner, and there was nothing in his record that he was ashamed of.

A few days before this Wells dismissed Robert Simmers, one of the inspectors of his department, who was charged by Wells with incompetency and failure to report violations of the law. This action was the last expiring gasp of a discredited official, for it was Simmers who on several occasions declared that he had evidence in his possession showing that Wells was fully cognizant of the fact that protection was being extended to dealers in oleomargarine. Simmers had threatened Wells months before, and it was natural that Wells should hate Simmers and endeavor to get rid of him before he, Wells, went out of office.

That Simmers has not been removed before is due to two reasons. One is that he knows a great deal more about the rottenness in the pure food and dairy department than he has revealed, and the other is that he is held in place by the mysterious power of two Chester county officials, Senator Snyder, president pro tem. of the senate, and T. Larry Eyre, superintendent of public buildings and grounds.

Months ago it is alleged that Simmers was recommended to Governor Stone for dismissal on the ground that he was aware that the law was being violated and that oleomargarine was being sold in vast quantities over the state. Senator Snyder, who comes from one of the largest dairy counties of the state, stepped in and pleaded successfully in behalf of Simmers, and secured his retention in office. Concerning this whole disreputable transaction the Philadelphia Press of Wednesday last says:

A SHAMEFUL AFFAIR.

"Robert M. Simmers, a special agent of the dairy and food division of the state agricultural department, has been removed from office by Commissioner Levi Wells, who goes out of office himself today under what is pretty well known to be a compulsory resignation. Agent Simmers has given Commissioner Wells a good deal of trouble, and as the commisioner now appears to think he has nothing more to fear he gets even by throwing the agent out.

"In taking this step Commissioner Wells gives the public a prepared statement in which he justifies the charge that the department has been under outside political influence and could not therefore be expected to have any efficiency. According to this scandalous confession Mr. Wells offered the governor, soon after his inauguration, reasons why Mr. Simmers should be removed, but that he was not removed because Senator Snyder, of Chester county, and Superintendent Eyre, the machine boss of the county, requested that he be retained. This is a very remarkable assertion. It seriously reflects upon both Senator Snyder and Mr. Eyre, but still more upon Commissioner Wells and the state administration if there were reasons why the agent should be removed. It is repeated that a few months later the agent's misdoings were such that his removal was again thought desirable, but that Senator Snyder again saved him.

"Charges of a grave character are made against the deposed agent by the deposed commissioner, and equally grave charges made by the agent are hanging over the commissioner. It is time now to have all the facts. If the charges alleged by these officials are true, mere dismissal from office is not enough in either case. The rottenness of the department is pretty thoroughly shown up by the statement of Commissioner Wells that neither he nor the governor could dismiss an agent he thought unfit to be in the service because Senator Snyder had a pull strong enough to prevent it. We do not know that the deposed agent is the bad man the commissioner alleges him to be, but there can be no need of further evidence to show the total unfitness of Commissioner Wells than his own statement. It could not be expected he could accomplish anything with subordinates kept in place by a power stronger than any either he or the governor felt competent to exercise."

Secretary of Agriculture John Hamilton was appointed by Governor Stone to perform the duties of dairy and food commissioner after Wells' dismissal. It has been weeks since the exposures by the Philadelphia North American were made and yet nothing has been done of any consequence to limit the sale of bogus butter or bring the guilty parties to justice. There has been a great deal of talk, but matters appear to be running in pretty much the same groove so far as prosecutions are concerned. Last week Secretary Hamilton called a meeting of all his agents and inspectors in secret session here in Harrisburg and gave them instructions, or alleged instructions, about prosecuting their work. It remains to be seen what will be done, but there is a popular impression that the department of agriculture and the dairy and food commission has been so besmirched by the corruption of its officials that nothing can be done until the entire department has been cleaned out. There is a general demand among the farmers of the state that John Hamilton, secretary of agriculture, step down and out for the good of the department. It was incompetency in the department, if not worse, that permitted such a condition as the sale of protection to oleomargarine dealers and the ruin of the pure butter interest to exist.

ANOTHER CASE IN POINT.

That Governor Stone has no apparently higher ambition in his political life than to reward the members of the machine is shown in his reappointment last week as insurance commissioner Israel W. Durham, of Philadelphia. The people of the state read with surprise and indignation the undisputed declaration in the Philadelphia North American some weeks ago that Mr. Durham had spent only four days in his office at Harrisburg in nearly a year. That he did not know the clerks in his department. And yet Governor Stone, who beseeched the people, when he was a candidate, to vote for him because he would be "a good governor," and a "governor of the people," thus rewards the confidence that was placed in him. With this new evidence of Governor Stone's subserviency to the machine of which Mr. Durham is one of the shining lights the North American of last Monday says:

"Governor Stone has reappointed Israel W. Durham insurance commissioner. It is an eminently characteristic selection, revealing anew the character of Governor Stone and exhibiting once more the nature of the services which are sure to receive reward at his hands. A place under this upright and self respecting state administration should be found for the Hon. Samuel Salter, in the fond hope of winning him back from exile. Governor Stone and Commissioner Durham had no more industrious and faithful follower."

THE ENGLISH EPISODE.

The whole state was shocked by the publication of the story of Director of Public Safety English's attempt to intimidate ex-Postmaster General John Wanamaker. The story has been commented on from San Francisco to Boston. It was the most shameful attempt at what the Philadelphia Press called "official blackmail" that was ever made. Men who are enemies of John Wanamaker wrote and thanked him for his nerve and fearlessness in publicly proclaiming the shame and disgrace of the Ashbridge-English outrage. Of course nobody believes that English of his own motion went to Wanamaker and threatened to expose affidavits affecting his moral character unless Wanamaker compelled the North American to cease its attacks on the Ashbridge administration. English was simply a tool. No man with honor would have descended to such a thing, but intimidation, blackmail and corruption are weapons used by the machine.

The Ashbridge administration which has besmirched itself is part and parcel of the Quay machine. It sought to grip and own Philadelphia in the interests of ex-Senator Quay and his friends. But this is all past. Some idea of the intense indignation that is felt over this attempt to throttle free speech and a free press and hold men in terror by threats against them, is shown in the call for a gigantic mass meeting in Philadelphia on Friday night next to demand the dismissal of English. The leading ministers, judges, business and professional men of Philadelphia have signed the call.

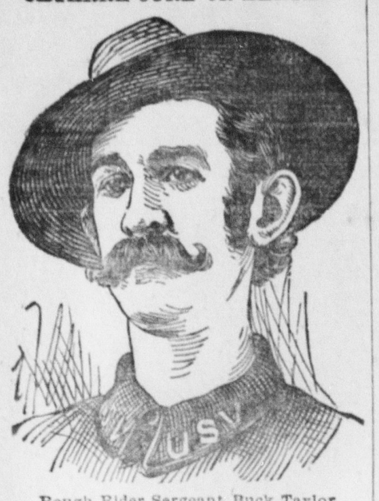
But it is not likely that Ashbridge or English will heed the volume of denunciation and indignation that is hurled against them. They are calloused, and like the rest of the machine, both in city and state, they care little for public opinion so long as they can continue to rule. In the meantime the war against the machine is going on apace in state, city and village. Quay is no longer a factor and the fight in the machine now is, who shall rule?

WILL FORCE THEIR HAND.

The Democrats are likely to soon have an opportunity to prove the sincerity of their vociferous outcry against trusts. It is stated that Chairman Ray of the House Judiciary Committee will shortly present a motion before Congress to suspend the rules and set an early date for the consideration of the joint resolution reported by him from his committee for an amendment to the constitution, clothing Congress with authority to legislate concerning unlawful trusts and combinations. The probability is that the Democrats will resist the motion, and if it does not prevail Chairman Ray will then offer a resolution providing for a special order to insure consideration and action on the joint resolution.

The Democratic members of the Judiciary Committee refused to vote to report this resolution, for some unexplained reason and it is probable they will oppose it on the floor of the House. If they do, the country will know how to regard any future utterances by them in regard to trusts. It is easy enough to twist a tail, whether it be that of a lion or of an "octopus," but when it comes to really doing something the Democratic party is usually a long ways in the background.

"I KNOW PERUNA IS THE BEST CATARRH CURE ON EARTH."



Rough Rider Sergeant Buck Taylor.

Sergeant Buck Taylor, one of the famous Rough Riders, is a personal friend of Governor Roosevelt, of New York. He accompanied Governor Roosevelt on his great stumping tour through upper New York state. He was promoted through gallantry in the field during the late war.

The Sergeant has the following to say of Pe-ru-na: "I think there is no better medicine on earth than Pe-ru-na, for catarrh. It has cured me. It would take a volume to tell you all the good it has done me. Pe-ru-na is the best catarrh cure on earth, and I know, for I have tried nearly all of them.

FARMERS' INSTITUTES.

The first Farmers' Institutes held in Centre county by state authority and at state cost were at State College and Howard, in the winter of 1889-90 and were organized by Dr. H. P. Armsby and John A. Woodward, at the request of Dr. E. W. Hale, who was at that time our representative on the State Board of Agriculture, but confined to his house by what proved to be his last illness.

Including those and up to this time, twenty-six of these most excellent meetings have been held and our whole farming interests have felt their beneficial influences.

Fourteen of our small, live towns, forming the business centres of some of the best farming communities in the county, have had these meetings as follows: State College, Port Matilda, Stormstown, Milesburg, Spring Mills, Hublersburg and Madisonburg, each one; Pine Grove, Millheim, Boalsburg and Centre Hall, each two; Rebersburg and Unionville, each three; Howard, five.

Four days of state aid and state speakers, equal to two institutes of two days each, will be allotted to this county for the coming winter. The county committee, which selects the places for holding the institutes, will meet at the Commissioners' office in the Court House, on Monday, June 11th, at 1 o'clock, when committees representing localities which desire the institute will be heard. Applications by letter may be sent in advance to John A, Woodward, chairman of the county committee, at Howard, and will be as carefully considered as personal applications. Localities desiring the institutes are expected to furnish a suitable hall, lighted and warmed, without cost to the state repersentatives, and if distant from a railway, convey the state speakers to and from the nearest station, free of cost.

FRENCH RADICALISM.

Premier Waldeck-Rousseau Points Out the Government's Plans.

SUSTAINED BY THE DEPUTIES.

The Program Includes Laws For Education, Direct Taxation, Workingmen's Pensions and a Law Against Calumniators of the Chief of State.

Paris, May 23.—The chamber of deputies, by three successive votes, yesterday declared its confidence in the government. The chamber was crowded and all the cabinet ministers were present. Paul Gouzy, Radical Socialist, interpellated the government on its general policy. The premier, M. Waldeck-Rousseau, accepted the interpellation and asked for its immediate discussion.

M. Gouzy pointed out the overwhelming majority recently cast for the government throughout France, except in Paris, at the municipal elections, and said the present was an opportune moment for the chamber to endorse this support of the ministry, who should inform the chamber what they intended to do in response to this republican demonstration.

Paul de Cassagnac, Conservative, followed, with a speech strongly attacking the government, but he said he did not desire the ministry's fall because its policy was having the result of disgusting the country with the republic. The latter statement evoked a protest from the Nationalist benches.

M. Waldeck-Rousseau replied. In the course of his speech, which was frequently interrupted by the Nationalists and applauded by the Socialists, the premier said the Paris elections were truly a rebuff for the republican idea, but, he added, the electors of the provinces had acclaimed the republic. Where the Republicans had been beaten, he asserted, their defeat was due to the alliance of a certain section of the Republicans with the opposition. He concluded by saying the government would ask the chamber to vote a law providing protection against caluminators of the chief of state and a law dealing with religious associations, whose vested properties could not be allowed to swell in order to furnish the adversaries of the republic with their war funds. The government's program, he further announced, included laws for education, direct taxation and workingmen's pensions, adding that if the program did not secure a majority he would leave to his successor the work of seeking its realization.

M. Ribot, Republican, former premier, replied to M. Waldeck-Rousseau, declaring the municipal elections were a success for the Republicans, but not for the government. He then proposed the simple order of the day, which M. Waldeck-Rousseau refused to accept and which the chamber rejected by 298 to 249 votes.

The premier then announced that he would accept the order of the day proposed by M. Gouzy, couched as follows:

"The chamber is resolved to energetically pursue a policy of reforms and the defense of the republic and laity and approves of the declarations of the government."

The first portion, up to "laity," was adopted by a vote of 439 to 56 and the second and crucial portion was adopted by 271 to 226 votes.

Several resolutions dealing with the threatened revival of the Dreyfus affair were submitted. One, introduced by M. Gustave Chapuis, Radical, invited the government vigorously to oppose a renewal of the Dreyfus agitation. This gave rise to some debate.

M. Waldeck-Rousseau then repeated his declaration that the government was determined to end a campaign that was disastrous to the country and to republican government. He said the ministerial amnesty law now before the senate was destined to bring about appeasement, but that there was no question of creating new press restrictions.

Alphonse Humbert, Radical Socialist, created a violent tumult by declaring that the government had been "an accomplice in the miserable work which consists in playing the game of the enemies of France."

The president of the chamber appealed to deputies to be calm, saying that M. Humbert could not have meant literally what he said.

M. Waldeck-Rousseau intervened, declaring that the government wished to record a formal indignant protest against the allegation of M. Humbert.

When order was restored the president of the chamber submitted the resolution of M. Chapuis, with an addition proposed by Camille Krantz, Republican in these words:

"And no longer allow detectives to place themselves at the service of private interests."

M. Waldeck-Rousseau indignantly refused to accept the addition, saying that he refused not merely because the addition implied mistrust, but because it was a personal insult, as it implied that he allowed his subordinates to betray their duty.

The motion of M. Chapuis, without the proposed addition, was adopted by 457 votes against 78.

Victory For Chinese Highbinders.

San Francisco, May 23.—At a meeting of the board of health and the attorneys of the Chinese Six Companies yesterday afternoon a letter was drawn up for posting in Chinatown to to the effect that the board of health will not forcibly compel Chinese to submit to inoculation, and that only those volunteering to undergo the operation will be treated by the physicians. It was also decided that a house to house canvass of Chinatown would be made to discover, if possible, any hidden cases of the disease. The federal authorities are still inoculating Chinese who attempt to leave the city.

Germany Needs Our Trade.

Berlin, May 23.—United States Vice Consul Murphy, at Magdenburg, has transmitted to Washington an extract from a German publication of recent date, which shows that the exports to the United States from the consular districts in northern Germany alone for the first quarter in 1900 amounted to $18,106,000. The amount is nearly double the value of the exports during the first quarter of 1898. When the amounts for the remainder of the empire are added the total is estimated at about $142,800,000. "How many thousands of Germans now dependent upon this trade for their support," says the article, "would be without bread if it were to suddenly stop."

Trolley Car Fatality at Buffalo.

Buffalo, N. Y., May 23.—Two cars on the Genesee street trolley line jumped the track yesterday afternoon as they were approaching a bridge across Scajaduaquada creek. They both entered adjacent fields, the first car being overturned. William Mulhall, a motorman, was seriously hurt. The passengers injured were: Mrs. Volk, skull fractured, cannot live; Mrs. Young, aged 50 years, both legs cut off and fatally injured; Mrs. Krueger, severely injured about face and body; Edwin Krueger, aged 4 years, son of Mrs. Krueger, badly injured; Mrs. Plefeger, Miss Mary Welth and Nathan Wolff, painfully bruised and lacerated.

Presbyterian Revision Postponed.

St. Louis, May 23.—Late yesterday afternoon the committee on bills and overtures presented its report on the proposal to revise the creed. The committee recommends that the moderator appoint a committee of 15, composed of seven clergymen and eight elders, to take action in the matter and report at the next meeting of the general assembly, and recommends that the various presbyteries consider the matter at their meetings next fall and report to the stated clerk in time for him to report to the general assembly.

Convicted Councilmen Resign.

Shamokin, Pa., May 23.—A special meeting of council was held last night to declare vacant the seats of Councilmen E. O. Zuern, William S. Zimmerman and Thomas A. Holl, who were convicted of bribery in connection with the paving contracts. It was expected the men would combat the move, whereby the names of other members suspected of having been in the brick deals would be exposed, but the three members, who were not present, sent in resignations, which were unanimously accepted.

A Threatened Sympathy Strike.

Buffalo, May 23.—it is reported that 1,200 molders will strike out of sympathy with the core makers in the foundries of Buffalo. The core makers have been endeavoring for some time to secure an increase of wages, and it is said the foundrymen were willing to meet them half way, but insisted on raising the ratio of apprentices beyond the point permitted by the union.

Struck Against Chief's Discharge.

Joliet, Ills., May 23.—The discharge of the president of the Amalgamated Association of Tin Workers precipitated a strike yesterday at the Great Western Tin Plate works here, 150 men walking out. After a conference the superintendent closed the entire works, throwing out 300 men. The wage question is not involved.

Rumors of a Terrible Mine Disaster.

Asheville, N. C., May 23.—It was reported here at midnight that an explosion occurred in the Cumnock mines near Charlotte last night. The news comes that between 50 and 60 miners were killed, but this is not confirmed.

Two Dead in a New York Fire.

New York, May 23.—A $500 fire in the basement of a flat house at 1691 Park avenue last night resulted in the death of Mrs. Josephine McShane and her 18-months-old son Edward, who were suffocated by smoke.

BOERS WILL NOT YIELD.

Foreign Consuls Notified of a Proposed Fight to the Finish.

CLEARING OUT NON-COMBATANTS

Boer Chiefs Preparing With the Utmost Haste For the Defense of Pretoria and Johannesburg—Lord Roberts Moving on Boer Strongholds.

London, May 23.—The Transvaal government has informed the correspondents at Pretoria that it has not considered and does not intend to consider unconditional surrender, but will fight to a finish. The foreign consuls have been informed that Johannesburg will be defended, and the government announces that it will not hold itself responsible for injury to person or property resulting from the defense measures.

Pretoria dispatches affirm that President Kruger, President Steyn and all the most prominent leaders of both republics, after a prolonged interchange of views, are determined to continue the resistance, but that a minority of the leaders advocate surrender without terms.

Mrs. Reitz, wife of the Transvaal state secretary, and her family, with the families of other officials, have gone to Lourenzo Marques. Johannesburg and Pretoria are being cleared of non-combatants. The Boer chiefs, who now recognize the possibility that they will have to defend these cities, are preparing with the utmost haste. The Boer spirit has been rising from a low ebb, and is now ready for a steadfast resistance.

Nevertheless, according to the Daily Chronicle, long messages in Dutch have been received by the British government by way of Amsterdam, in which President Kruger seeks peace. According to one account President Kruger surrenders unconditionally; according to another he asks for terms.

There seems to be good reason for believing that he is earnestly endeavoring to secure terms, but cable inquiries fail to confirm the assertion that correspondence has recently passed between Great Britain and the Transvaal respecting terms.

Lord Roberts is again moving. The British infantry left Kroonstad Monday and headquarters was expected to leave yesterday. The railway has been restored, and the first train is due to arrive today.

The Boers are busy blasting for gun emplacements along the Rhonoster river. Gen De Wet commands, as Gen. Botha is ill.

The advance of Lord Roberts will propably be swift. It is the expectation of well informed observers here that the Vaal river, 85 miles beyond Kroonstad, will be crossed by the end of the week.

Sir Redvers Buller, in a general order to his troops congratulating them on the result of their ten days' operations, says they were only checked at Laings Nek by a fresh commando sent from the Transvaal. Gen. Clery, with a cavalry brigade, engaged the rear guard of the Boers at Laings Nek on Sunday, captured a number of wagons and took some prisoners. His artillery shelled the Nek. The Boers in their retreat laid waste the territory, blew up bridges and burned several houses, as many as six at Newcastle. The machinery of the Navigation collieries was ruined.

Gen. Buller, replying to residents of Newcastle who presented him with a trophy, said he expected to return from Pretoria soon.

Nothing new concerning the relief of Mafeking has come through. All the accounts of the engagement on May 16 extols the bravery of the Canadians. Col. Mahon's column arrived at the rendezvous one hour after Col. Plumer, showing with what accuracy the movements were timed.

Sir Alfred Milner, speaking at Cape Town Monday, before an enormous assemblage celebrating the relief of Mafeking, referred to the remark of a previous speaker who had condemned the Boers as "cowardly scoundrels." He said:

"There are many among our enemies who deserve to be honored for their heroism. Although cases of treachery and barbarity have occurred they have been exceptional. The conduct of the enemy is that of brave men fighting for a bad cause. Yet they are entitled to respect."

The Durban correspondent of The Times, telegraphing yesterday, says: "Rev. Adrain Hofmeyr tells me he was informed by a high Boer official that, when President Kruger notified the raad of the government's arrangements to blow up the mines and to destroy Johannesburg Gen. Louis Botha hurried to Pretoria and had a stormy interview with President Kruger, to whom he said that if the plan were not cancelled he would himself defend Johannesburg, adding that the Boers were not barbarians. At this, according to Mr. Hofmeyr, the plan was abandoned."

The British who are in the hands of the Boers at Pretoria by some extraordinary means learn of the British victories as soon as the Transvaal authorities, and they build bonfires and sing "God Save the Queen." The Pretoria people are apprehensive of a rising of the prisoners, and agitate for a transference of the whole number to a point inside the British lines, saying that 4,000 more or less make no difference.

The morning papers continue to discuss at length President McKinley's refusal to intervene, pointing out the collapse of Boer hopes.

Presbytery Upholds Professor.

Chattanooga, Tenn., May 23.—The general assembly of the Cumberland Presbyterian church yesterday discussed the report of the committee on overtures referring to the memorial asking the removal of Rev. R. V. Foster from the chair of systematic theology in the Cumberland university at Lebanon, Tenn., because of his belief in the subject of "Regeneration." The committee report recommends "that you do not grant the prayer of the memoralists for his removal from the chair of thology."

Adjutant General Castleton replied: "I beg to say that the state owes far more to you. The conditions have been constantly menacing to the public peace, to a degree best known to you and to me. You have been forbearing and fairminded always."

General Schwan's Prediction.

St. Paul, May 23.—"The pacification of the Philippines is assured at no distant date, and in fact is very nearly accomplished," said Brigadier General Theodore Schwan, who arrived in St. Paul from Manila last night. There is no longer a rebel military organization and the guerrills or robber bands now pursued by the American troops have always existed. They have been reinforced by officers and men of the rebel army who preferred fighting to labor when their government was broken up, but they are fighting without any union, and each band for itself."

THE KENTUCKY FUGITIVES.

Governor Mount Feared a Lynching Had He Surrendered Finley.

Indianapolis, May 23.—Charles E. Wilson, secretary to Governor Mount, said yesterday: "Before leaving for Fort Wayne last night Governor Mount authorized me to say that his action in declining to honor a requisition for the return of Charles Finley to Kentucky was based on his deliberate conviction that, owing to the excited state of public opinion in that state, especially among the professional politicians, who are vehemently threatening vengeance, a tragedy would have swiftly followed, with Finley the victim. He would have been hanged like a pig to the pole."

Charles Finley and W. S. Taylor are at their new quarters in the Dennison. Many local republicans have called and congratulated them. Mr. Taylor said today: "It is an awful thing to be exiled from the place of my birth, from the state that honored me with its highest office, and from my wife and children. Yet I know, as you know, that my return to Kentucky would mean that I would be incarcerated with no chance of bail, or, for that matter, exposed to assassins who have awaited an opportunity to wreak vengeance on me."

Terrible Child Murder in Ohio.

Chillicothe, O., May 23.—Edith Long, aged 13, daughter of Stephen Long, who lives on a farm near Austin, was found yesterday afternoon at a spring near her home with her throat cut from ear to ear and head mashed. She had been outraged. A colored man, giving the name of Richard Gardiner, arrested at Austin, claims Cincinnati as his home. Deputy Devin found blood stains on his clothes. An attempted lynching was prevented.

Rejected Lover's Double Crime.

New York, May 23.—Wilfred Y. S. Lendegren last night shot and killed Lydia Carson, a servant at the country seat of Max Nathan, in Yonkers. He then shot and killed himself. Monday the girl rejected Lendegren's offer of marriage.

A GRAND ARMY CATECHISM.

Items of Information About the Order of Veterans.

What is the G. A. R.?

An association of veteran soldiers who served in the northern armies between April, 1861, and August, 1865. The first G, A, R, post was instituted at Decatur, Ills., in April, 1866. The posts in the several states are organized into departments, as department of New York, department of Iowa, and so on. The heads of the departments bear the title of department commander. The head of the national body is called commander in chief.

What is the uniform?

The uniform varies in the several departments, and many posts adopt an individual pattern. As a rule, the uniform is a modification of former military styles. The prevailing color is dark blue.

Is there any distinctive hat?

The large black hat with gilt cord and deep crease in the crown has become known as the Grand Army hat. Gray hats of the same shape are also much worn. The army forage cap with a straight visor has been officially adopted by some posts and departments.

What are the badges worn by the G. A. R. men?

On parade the veterans wear the badges of the army corps in which they served during the war, army society badges, regimental badges and the G. A. R. membership badge surmounted by an eagle and having a five pointed pendant. The G. A. R badge is an honorary decoration bestowed upon each comrade at the time of his muster into the order.

G. A. R. MEMBERSHIP BADGE.

What does the eagle on the G. A. R. badge signify?

The eagle, perched on crossed cannon and clutching a sword in its talons, is emblematic of defense. The object of its protection is the flag, which is the ribbon of the order.

What do the figures on the centre of the star represent?

The Goddess of Liberty stands for loyalty, the soldier and sailor clasping hands for fraternity, and the children symbolize the third virtue held sacred by the order namely, charity. The star of every badge is made from metal of cannons captured in battle.

What good purpose does the G. A. R. serve?

The order keeps alive the memory of patriotic sacrifices in time of public danger and also carries on an extensive benevolent work in relieving cases of need among disabled veterans and dependent members of the families of veterans, irrespective of the relation of the needy ones to the Grand Army organization. Each post maintains a relief fund sacred to emergency calls, and many millions have been disbursed through this channel.

What is the significance of the G. A. R. button?

The bronze button worn by veterans in the coat lapel is a badge of recognition, being a conspicuous evidence that the wearer is a member of the G.A.R. It is unlawful for any person not a member of the order to wear either the G. A. R. button or official badge.

What is the most imposing feature of Memorial day exercises?

The parade of the veterans and the formal ceremonies of decorating the graves of the dead. Memorial day originated with the G. A. R.having been established by order of Commander In Chief John A, Logan in 1868. The decorations were originally limited to the dead who fell in the war.

Soldiers Monument and Curtin Memorial.

On the evening of Memorial Day (May 30" inst.) a public meeting will be held in the Court House, under the suspices of the Soldiers Monument and Curtin Memorial Association, and Gregg Post G. A. R. It will be presided over by George W. Atherton, president of the Pennsylvania State College.

An address will be delivered by Dr. William H. Egle from Harrisburg. Subject, "Governor Curtin and the Soldier's of Centre County in the War of the Rebellion." No man living in the State or elsewhere is so thoroughly competent to deliver an able, and comprehensive address on a subject so important and vitally interesting to the people of Bellefonte and Centre County as Dr. Egle.

The meeting will be of great interest and it is confidently hoped that the whole community will be present to hear the learned and able Doctor upon a theme so near and dear to every patriot. Special arrangements will be made for all organizations attending in a body. A cordial invitation is extended to the "Daughters of the American Revolution." and also the ladies of the County.

WAR AND WITCHERY

BY PETER M'ARTHUR.

Copyright, 1899, by Peter McArthur.

Gladys was superstitious.

But she was also young and pretty and lovable, so this trifling folly only added to her charm and made her men friends feel brave and enlightened whenever she betrayed her weakness. As a natural consequence of this peculiarity she was always afraid to sit on a dark veranda alone and would never think of going for a walk in the evening without a fearless escort. She wouldn't open an umbrella in the house, walk under a ladder or pick up a pin that lay with its head toward her, and she wouldn't sit in a room that had three lamps lit in it at once, though she didn't object strenuously to one that was more dimly furnished. Of course she was laughed at a great deal for her foolishness, but she shook her head wisely and continued to carry lucky stones in her pockets and to perform the many little rites known only to the superstitious. Knowing these things about her, the following soliloquy can be more readily understood:

"I just knew something would happen that would be unlucky, and now we've gone and quarreled. I saw the new moon over my left shoulder, and because he laughed at me I know I only bowed to it seven times instead of nine before I made a wish. But he needn't have been in such a hurry about getting formally engaged, for I'm sure I've been treating him just as well as any one else, and better too. He might have known that I think more of him than any one else, and he might have waited until I was good and ready. But he just thinks that because he was at Santiago and all the girls want to kiss him he should have his own way about everything. But, oh, I do wish we hadn't quarreled, for he looked so angry that I'm sure he'll never make up friends again." And the tears came to her eyes.

The fact is that Gladys was a flirt without the slightest intention of being one, and she couldn't understand the fierce jealousy that her conduct caused in her circle of admirers. Before Lieutenant Halloway had accepted the position of commandant in the military academy on the outskirts of the town she had never had any serious trouble with her retinue. But when he appeared on the scene he promptly began, after the manner of a hero, to charge the citadel of her heart as he had the blockhouses in Cuba. Like all the rest of the girls, she had worshiped him for the dangers he had passed, but her worship was the only one that appeared to interest him. He took it seriously from the beginning, and when he began to offer his worship in return she was very much flustered and very happy, but she could not be expected to drop all her other followers at once. Lieutenant Halloway, however, insisted that they be mustered out without delay, and that meant that she must settle down as being engaged, a thing she had no intention of doing for at least another couple of seasons. So when he found he couldn't have his own way he retreated in good order and intrenched himself in a dignified military reserve. Whenever he passed by her window, as he was obliged to when going to the postoffice, his head was carried a shade higher than would be demanded by a martinet, and the set of his shoulders would have satisfied even the critical Mulvaney. He walked with "eyes front," though it is just possible that he noticed the fact that the curtains usually shook as if they were being moved aside a trifle by some one who was peeping from behind them.

A week of this masterly inactivity made them both very unhappy, and the lieutenant was showing signs of attempting conquests in other quarters before Gladys realized that something must be done, though she didn't exactly know what. Of course she couldn't send for him and tell him that she was now ready to become engaged, and, if he wouldn't come of his own accord, how could a protocol ever be agreed to? There were no open hostilities, it is true, but neither was there a siege. The little war of hearts was in danger of ending of inanition, without a victory for either and with a defeat for both, so Gladys thought it all over and racked her mind for some plan that would restore the status quo. It was then she remembered that one evening when Lieutenant Halloway was laughing at her superstitions he told of an old one that was very prevalent in the time of Catherine de' Medici, when people found it necessary to sway others secretly to their will. He told her how the astrologers used to make figures of wax or any substance that would melt readily and then destroy the person piecemeal by piercing the effigy at whatever part they wished to affect. While she was thinking of this she was looking idly from her window at the boys of the military academy, who had erected a snow fort, on the top of which they had built a square shouldered snow man. When they completed the figure, they placed a military cap on its head and attached to it a placard bearing the name "Lieutenant Halloway." Here was a figure that would surely be melted in a few days, and it was ready to her hand! Of course she did not wish to destroy her hero, but she was very anxious that his hardened heart should be materially affected, and what she should do at once became clear to her.

* * * * * * *

On the following afternoon Lieutenant Halloway was passing the snow fort on his way to the postoffice. He stopped to view the fortifications, intending to give his pupils a lecture on military engineering, and presently he noticed the placarded effigy of himself. It was rapidly melting in the afternoon sunlight, and while looking at it idly he noticed something piercing it under the left shoulder just where its frosty heart should be. Stepping nearer, he pulled out an arrow which he at once recognized as one of half a dozen that he had made for Gladys' little brother, and finding it there perplexed him. He knew that the little man was one of his most ardent admirers and besides not wishing to do him injury would not wish to lose his arrow. While he turned it over in his hand the truth suddenly flashed on him. He remembered having told Gladys about the superstition of bewitching by effigies, and the foolish little minx had evidently acted upon it. Laughing softly to himself, he put the arrow in his pocket and went his way.

That evening Gladys was both surprised and delighted when the servant brought to her Lieutenant Halloway's card. But of course it would not do to let him know that she was glad to see him. Anyway he was under the influence of the spell, and, being sure of him, she could afford to punish him somewhat before consenting to make him happy. Summoning all her stateliness she went to the parlor and bowed stiffly in response to her visitor's cheery greeting. He had been thinking the matter over ever since finding the arrow and was glowing with self satisfaction owing to the conviction that she really loved him after all. But her coolness disconcerted him a trifle. Of course the evidence was solely circumstantial, but still he didn't feel that he could possibly be mistaken.

"I thought that you had forgotten your old friends," she began.

"Not at all," he replied. "I was simply waiting for them to show a flag of truce."

"Why, I thought heroes never waited, and that above all they didn't accept defeat readily and beat a retreat. But I am glad to see that you have evidently accepted the terms of peace and have modified your claims. For my part, since we were good friends before you developed imperialistic tendencies I am willing to let bygones be bygones."

HER COOLNESS DISCONCERTED HIM A TRIFLE.

"But I don't want bygones to be bygones. It was because I thought"—

"Dear me!" How could you do such a thing? I always understood that soldiers were not allowed to think."

"Not when under orders," he replied, "but your orders were not quite tangible enough, and I thought it allowable to use my discretion."

"But I have been told that discretion makes men retreat instead of advance. But the orders I last gave you were surely definite enough."

"But I had reason to suppose that you had either countermanded them or wished to. And I didn't feel it could be possible that after having been so dear to another you could be so cruel as to throw me over simply because I wanted to have you all to myself and to have the right to let all the world know how happy I was."

"In short, you wanted to have the right to make all the nice fellows of my acquaintance recognize your belligerency and not let me have any more good times."

"Now, please be in earnest, Gladys, dear. You know how much I love you even though I let anger keep me away for a week and make me utterly wretched. But I wouldn't be here tonight if it were not that I knew you wanted to make up."

"What on earth is the man talking about?" said Gladys, with a pretty affectation of wonder.

At this point Lieutenant Halloway began to fear that he had allowed himself to fall into an ambuscade, and he prepared to defend himself.

"Why," he said, "I came because I thought you wanted me."

"Dear me! What could have put that into your head? I'm sure if you didn't come because you wanted to yourself I couldn't think of detaining you for a minute. I know you are expected elsewhere and that the town is simply full of reconcentrados who are dying for your company." And as she said this her tone was decidedly irritating. The lieutenant, however, was not used to warfare of this kind, and, as he was getting the worst of it, he decided on immediate action. Taking the arrow from his pocket, he held it out to her.

"DO YOU SURRENDER?" HE ASKED.

"I thought you meant this to be a token that there was to be peace between us."

Gladys blushed crimson when she saw the little splinter of wood and tried to stammer that she didn't know what he meant. Her embarrassment proved that she understood only too well, and the soldier proceeded to deliver an ultimatum at once.

"Do you surrender?" he asked.

"Oh, give me time to think," she replied.

"Indeed I won't. I am tired of this manana policy and will agree to nothing but unconditional surrender." Seeing that her little folly had been found out and that the lieutenant was in deadly earnest in spite of his jesting words, Gladys surrendered.

After their differences were made up and the terms of the treaty agreed to Lieutenant Halloway said laughingly:

"So you actually believed all that nonsense I told you that night about bewitching with effigies and tried to destroy my heart by piercing it with an arrow—just as if you hadn't pierced it long before."

"But why shouldn't I believe in it? It brought you back, didn't it?"

"Oh, nonsense! I would have come back anyway, for I could never have lived without you."

"You were managing pretty well," she said, with a pout.

"Not nearly so well as I appeared to be, or I wouldn't have accepted the message of the arrow so readily."

"But you couldn't help yourself. You were under the spell, you know."

"Spell nothing. I can hardly believe that you put faith in that old nonsensical mummery."

"But it brought you back," said Gladys, with a wise shake of her head.

And, seeing there was nothing to be gained by arguing, the hero dropped the subject and made his prisoner as comfortable as possible, as became a generous conqueror.

The English Coffee House.

The coffee house is every night crowded with men of parts. Almost every one you meet is a polite scholar and a wit. Jokes and bonmots are echoed from box to box. Every branch of nature is critically examined and the merit of every production of the press or performance at the theaters weighed and determined. This school (to which I am myself indebted for a great part of my education and in which, though unworthy, I am now arrived at the honor of being a public lecturer) has bred up many authors to the amazing entertainment and instruction of their readers.

Button's, the grand archetype of the Bedford, was frequented by Addison, Steele, Pope and the rest of that celebrated set who flourished at the beginning of this century and was regarded with just deference on account of the real geniuses who frequented it. But we can now boast men of superior abilities, men who, without any one acquired excellence, by the mere dint of a happy assurance, can exact the same tribute of veneration and receive it as due to the illustrious characters, the scribblers, players, fiddlers, gamblers, that make so large a part of the company at the Bedford.—Connoisseur.

CAST FOR A THINKING PART

BY HOWARD FIELDING.

Copyright, 1899, by C. W. Hooke.

In theatrical parlance the supernumerary who speaks no lines, but merely appears upon the stage, plays a "thinking" part. Usually he is seen only a few minutes, and he himself beholds but little of the performance, a fragment of a scene, the backs of the principals as they declaim to the audience, action without meaning to him, since he knows not the context. He could not tell the story of the drama of which he is so small yet an essential part.

Such being the fact, let me introduce to you Mr. Wallace B. Tinkham. Do not fancy that Mr. Tinkham is connected with the theatrical profession. He keeps a store in Rutledge, Vt., the best store in the place, quite good enough, in fact, for a city.

A few years ago, when human existence was not so strenuous, Mr. Tinkham would have been called an ordinary man. His life moves evenly along, and he is happy in a quiet way, proud, too, of his commercial reputation and of his wife and children and well ordered home.

Mr. Tinkham had been in New York for a couple of days buying stock for his store. His business done, with the exception of one small matter which must be completed on the morrow, he found himself with an evening on his hands, and he decided to go to a theater.

All the plays mentioned in a list of amusements in an afternoon paper were equally unknown to him, so he selected "The Christian" for the sake of its name. He was fortunate enough to secure a good seat on the center aisle, and there he bestowed his ample form much earlier than was necessary and awaited with serene patience the rising of the curtain.

At last the orchestra began to play, and Mr. Tinkham, whose mind had been in Rutledge, Vt., became suddenly conscious that his body was in New York. He experienced an almost boyish sensation of pleasure; it was so seldom that he went to the theater. He wished that his wife and children were there, especially his daughter, who always enjoyed everything so much. Then the play opened, and Mr. Tinkham was transported to the Isle of Man.

About this time two persons were ushered to seats behind Mr. Tinkham, but he was so intent upon the drama that he was unconscious of their arrival. They were a man and a woman, obviously New Yorkers both. The man was tall, dark and nervous—so nervous, in fact, that the quality is rightly included in a description of his personal appearance. His face was not handsome, but it bore the stamp of fierce earnestness, which lent a fascination to its irregular lines. He had a habit of holding his head eagerly forward, as if he were restrained only by a cord fastened to the back of his collar—the attitude of a hound held in leash. His hair had turned gray in an irregular fashion that came near being a disfigurement; it was so palpably the result of hasty living.

The woman was young and of very attractive, high bred appearance, marred only by a restlessness not like and yet akin to that of her companion. Her dress was not especially conspicuous, but the value of all that she wore, including her jewels, was about equal to the expense of Mr. Tinkham's household for seven years, and he lived well.

"We were mad to come here," said the woman. "Some one we know is certain to see us."

"A little additional gossip about us won't make any difference," said the man, not without a certain accent of satisfaction.

TWO PERSONS WERE USHERED TO SEATS BEHIND MR. TINKHAM.

His companion did not share this view.

"Nothing that I have done, unless it may be this," said she somewhat coldly, "has given cause for gossip."

"You are very clever," he replied, "and that makes me wonder all the more why you should hesitate"—

"Hush!" she whispered. "That man in front of us is listening."

It happened that Mr. Tinkham suffered from an inequality in his auditory apparatus. His left ear was as good as any man's, but the right one was a bit dull. When the people on the stage lowered their voices, Mr. Tinkham naturally turned his good ear toward them.

This movement was misinterpreted by the lady behind him, who was deeply interested in her own affairs and not at all in those of John Storm and Glory Quayle. She saw that Mr. Tinkham had shifted his position for the purpose of hearing better, and she supposed that the ear turned toward herself was the one that was doing the work. On the contrary, the gentleman from Rutledge had really placed himself in the least favorable attitude for listening to her.

"Never mind him," said the young man with the gray hair. "He doesn't know who we are."

"Well," said she, "what were you going to say?"

"Only this," he replied: "It seems providential that your aunt is going to Europe just at this time."

"Providential is rather a queer word for it. Don't you think so?" said she.

"Oh, you take this matter altogether too seriously!" he declared. "The fact is this: I must go abroad. You and I are very good friends. It would please me more than anything else in the world if you could go across at the same time and be somewhere near me on the other side."

"On the contrary," said she, "the fact is this: My husband is much absorbed in business and is beginning to grow old. He enjoys my society. He would do anything in the world to please me, but the life he likes to lead is rather dull for me. Therefore I am tempted to go abroad; to run about on the continent having a good time and doubtless enjoying a great deal of your amiable companionship. Viewed in one way, the plan is entirely innocent; viewed in another, it is selfish and wicked, for it is desertion of a man who has given me his name, his wealth, his heart and everything that a man can give a woman."

Then the young man with the gray hair turned about in his chair until he faced his companion. He put his elbow on the chair back and shielded his face with his hand so that no one behind him could read the motion of his lips or the expression of his countenance, and he began to prove that black was white and that darkness was daylight. There was a fascination in his subtle eloquence and in the intensity of his earnestness. As he spoke the woman seemed to see that selfishness was a virtue and the ordinary self sacrifice which makes life possible a folly and a superstition. Why shouldn't she run away and play like a child? It was her husband who was selfish if he wished to deny her the pleasure.

Mr. Tinkham heard not a word of all this. The play absorbed him. He twisted about in his seat like a boy at the circus and finally succeeded in dislodging the stud which held his collar at the back. The band of linen crept up in the usual way until it tickled the back of his head, while his tie got under the collar in a most annoying fashion. He experienced, besides, the usual embarrassment, and presently his big, fat hands were trying to repair the damage.

The lady saw this out of the corner of her eye, and her attention was distracted. It is impossible to watch a human creature struggling with a refractory collar button and not take interest in the game. One may take sides with the man or with the collar button, but one cannot be indifferent.

The young man did not notice Mr. Tinkham's struggles, but he observed the division of his companion's attention. It is extremely disquieting to address the half of a person's mind, especially when one does not know what the other half is doing.

"Listen to me," said he. "What earthly reason is there why you should not take this little vacation? You are tired of New York. You are not happy at home. New scenes, new faces, will do you good."

"My excellent friend," said she, "you know and I know that this sort of thing is the beginning of scandal. The coincidence of our departure will be noted and commented upon."

"Then I will take another steamer."

"In that case why go at all," said she—"that is, from your point of view? I shall not see much of you abroad. You will go to Vienna, where your mother is ill, and surely I will not follow you."

"Wherever you are," said he, "there I will be."

"You have put your finger upon the difficulty," she answered. "I do not trust in the discretion of your friendship. I hardly believe that you wish to be discreet. It seems sometimes as if you deliberately planned to have our names unpleasantly associated."

Here was a dangerous place, and the young man knew it. Dealing with a woman whose most notable characteristic was her amazing frankness, it was imperatively necessary to avoid the suspicion of double dealing. He threw his whole soul into the argument, and she felt his power as never before.

But just at that moment the affairs of Mr. Tinkham also reached a crisis. His struggle with the collar button was on the very verge of success when brutal failure stepped in and crushed all hope. The button slipped from his fingers. It wriggled itself out of the buttonhole, and in a moment it was sliding coldly down his spine. Frantically he strove to reach it. For a few desperate seconds his fingers touched the elusive bit of metal and turned it about like a wheel. Then it went one degree lower and was lost forever.

The lady saw all this and for a moment forgot that there was any such place as Europe or anything to be decided in the world except the fate of Mr. Tinkham's collar button. She was blessed with a lively sense of the ridiculous, and not even the hypnotic power of her companion could wholly overpower her desire to laugh.

The young man saw this and fancied himself ridiculous in her eyes. That is the one thing against which such a man's nature is not armed. The mirth in her glance parried his eloquence and made all his weapons powerless. When she laughed, he felt himself beaten, and he lost his temper.

Then she saw him for a moment as he really was. A rough word in the midst of all this smooth persuasion was a message straight from his ruthless heart, and his anger at her that she made game of him, as he thought, showed her how he valued her.

It all passed in a moment. She gave no sign of perceiving that anything of consequence had happened in the little drama they were playing. With an almost imperceptible gesture she drew her companion's attention to Mr. Tinkham, the supernumerary, where he sat playing his thinking role and quite unconscious of his value in the scene.

The young man with the gray hair saw that he had made a mistake, and he hastened to repair it, but such mistakes are seldom repaired at all. The action of life dramas hangs upon them, for in real existence, as upon the stage, the important thing in the play is the revelation of character.

The curtain fell, shutting off the view of the old Manx castle, and then it rose, revealing quite a different scene. The lady declared that she must watch the second act, and sometimes she did so, and again she watched Mr. Tinkham, with a dim appreciation of the service he had rendered her.

It was impossible after that for the young man to resume his argument in favor of a European tour without reminding the lady of the way Mr. Tinkham had struggled with his collar button, and who could be serious with such a thought? Moreover, Mr. Tinkham did not cease to be annoyed by the collar that would not stay down. At one time he tried to fasten it with a pin, and bloodshed followed, to the lady's great amusement.

The play was nearly done before she would consent to be serious, and then she would merely shake her head and say: "No, no! This is all folly. I shall remain in New York, where I belong."

HE DID NOT NOTICE HER.

Presently the curtain fell for the last time. The audience crowded the aisles and slowly moved out. The young man was cursing his folly in not insisting upon going to some other theater when he had learned that all the boxes in this one were engaged. But the lady's mind was occupied with a desire to get a good look at Mr. Tinkham's face. She paused a moment in the foyer for that purpose. The gentleman from Rutledge, Vt., passed quite close to her, but did not notice her. He would have been interested to observe that, despite the difference in age and breeding and, above all, in dress, she looked a little like his eldest daughter. This is unimportant, however, as he did not observe it.

He was occupied with the confusion, the unfamiliar noises from the street, the painful glare of lights.

"I don't belong here," he was saying to himself. "Thank heaven, I'll be home tomorrow!"

EXERCISING HUMMEL.

So as to Brace His Nerves for His Terrible Ordeal.

The Lycoming county officials are determined that Murderer Hummel shall not collapse and give the jail people a lot of trouble on the day of his execution, now only twenty-three days away. To that end the deputy sheriff is trying to improve Hummel's appetite and incidentally his physical condition by exercising him daily. A part of Hummel's daily exercise consists in jumping over a broomstick held three feet from the floor, and Saturday he got a lot of exercise by turning forward and backward handsprings and walking on his hands from one end of the corridor to the other.

Jail Physician Stokes said Saturday: "For about ten days Hummel declined so rapidly that I thought he might not live to be hanged June 5. He is all right now, apparently, and I anticipate no collapse."

Hummel is still freakish about his meals, and last night closed a two days' fast by eating a chicken cooked at a restaurant.

BLUES

Ever have them? Then we can't tell you anything about them. You know how dark everything looks and how you are about ready to give up. Somehow, you can't throw off the terrible depression.

Are things really so blue? Isn't it your nerves, after all? That's where the trouble is. Your nerves are being poisoned from the impurities in your blood.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla

purifies the blood and gives power and stability to the nerves. It makes health and strength, activity and cheerfulness.

This is what "Ayer's" will do for you. It's the oldest Sarsaparilla in the land, the kind that was old before other Sarsaparillas were known.

This also accounts for the saying, "One bottle of Ayer's is worth three bottles of the ordinary kind."

$1.00 a bottle. All druggists.

ANOTHER MONTANA SENATOR.

Clark's Appointment Revoked and Martin Maginnis Named.

Butte, Mont., May 19.—Governor Smith yesterday sent dispatches to Senator W. A. Clark, Senator Chandler, chairman of the committee on privileges and elections, and Senator Frye, president of the senate, saying he had disregarded and revoked the action of Lieutenant Governor Spriggs in naming Mr. Clark to succeed to the vacancy caused by his own resignation and saying he had named Martin Maginnis, of Helena, to fill the vacancy. The governor gives as his reasons his opinion that the appointment of Mr. Clark by the lieutenant governor was tainted by collusion and fraud. The governor also issues an open letter to the people of the state denying that he had any knowledge of the contemplated step when he left Montana for California. "I shall prove by my conduct in the future," he concludes, "that I was not guilty of any wrong doing or any idea of wrong." It Was a False Alarm

Some mischievous boy created an excitement at the opera house Thursday evening by crying fire!. There was a large audience present to listen to the concert by Miss Mary Bradley's pupils and for a few minutes it looked as if a panic would take place. The alarm however soon proved to be a false one and through the presence of mind of several of those present all accidents were averted and everything soon quieted down. The fire alarm was sounded however and both fire companies turned out only to find that all the rubber in town was not contained in their hose.

At the Methodist church it created some excitement to. The reception to Rev. Smyser was at its height and Rev. Shriner had just called upon the audience to take out their handkerchief and give a salute in honor of the Reverend gentle man when, as if in answer to this, the fire alarm sounded, and excitement reigned supreme No doubt Rev. Smyser and family will long remember this incident in their welcome to Bellefonte.

Colonization pays.

English colonies are England's best customers. During the last ten years the total trade between the United Kingdom and her colonies amounted to almost nine billions of dollars. Notwithstanding the fact that England draws so enormously upon her colonies for raw material with which to make her manufactured goods, such as wool from Australia, almost one-half of the entire trade consisted of exports produced in British factories. They exceeded in value, by nearly 150 per cent, the exports from the United Kingdom to the United States within the same period.

"Susies' Band"

This novel and very amusing musical feature is presented in the production of "Vermont" by nine young misses. Each plays a zolo band instrument, thus forming a complete brass band. The costumes are very beautiful and their musical selections are of a catchy order—Do not fail to see "Susie's Band" supported by a chorus of over fifty children in costumes especially designed for this production in the latest popular melody, "My Dad's the leader of the band"—Garman's Opera House next week Thursday & Friday evenings Benefit Soldiers' Monument.

MEMORIAL DAY.

Proclamation From the Department Commander.

Department Commander J. T. Morrison, of the G. A. R., has issued the following from headquarters in Philadelphia:

"Tenderly beautiful is that great memory" which draws us to our Memorial Day; the day for flags and flowers and music to be dedicated and given to those comrades of ours who are dreaming in the sleep of death—the day on which we give our thoughts to those glory crowned heroes whose heart beats are stilled forever and forever.

"The choicest phrases of prose and poetry; the sweetest language of flowers and the most beautiful symphonies of music have been called on and culled from for thirty-four years to pay homage to those dead comrades of ours; to give tribute to the memory of the brave boys who shared privations with us in the field, or with us faced dangers on angry ocean's bosom, and who have answered the last roll call; yet after a lapse of all these years, after more than a third of a century has glided by on the swiftly, silently moving wings of time, hearts are attuned, by memories of danger and of daring and of suffering; by rememberances of the march, the bivouac and the battle; by recollections of wounds, of prison horrors and death, to sing again the old sweet song of loved and loving comrades to tell again the old sweet story of affectionate comradeship.

"And the dear old flag! The grandest of all national emblems shall be intertwined with the flowers, music, the poetry and the eloquence, and as we decorate with nature's brightest and most beautiful flowers each little green mound of soldier and of sailor dead, we'll plant there too the starry banner. Let us touch the stringe of the harp of memory, as angel choirs sing:

"Sleep with the sunshine of fame on thy Slumbers, Till waked by some hand less unworthy than mine."

"Interest other societies to take part in the loving duties of the day, bring the men, women and children of the community in which the post is located to participate with you.

"Memorial Day is the proper and only title applied to May 30th by the Grand Army of the Republic. Decoration Day is a misnomer and is used by those who seek to divert the day for races, games and general sporting purposes. Comrades and their friends, newspapers and the people generally are urged to discontinue the use of any term other than Memorial Day for May 30th.

The commander-in-chief makes an appeal to comrades and posts for contributions for flags with which to decorate the tens of thousand of graves of our comrades who lie "under the dew and the sod" throughout the south. Posts and comrades located in the southern states are numerically and financially weak. They attend to the sacred duties of Memorial Day, but they need flags for decoration purposes. Contributions for this purpose should be sent to Thomas J. Stewart, adjutant general, Independence Hall, Philadelphia, who will acknowledge the receipt of all such monies, turn the same over to the quartermaster general who will purchase and forward the flags Every post can afford to make a donation for this purpose and it is hoped that the responses will be liberal and prompt."

A Prominent Citizen of Millheim Dead.

John Adam Miller, a prominent citizen of Millheim, died at his home in that place Monday, May 14, of dropsy and heart trouble. He was born in Miles township, June 2, 1837 and was 62 years, 11 month and 12 days old.

During the Civil war Mr. Miller was orderly sergeant in Co. A, 148th regiment of Pa. Vol. He enlisted in August, 1862, and remained in active service until the close of the war. His record as a soldier is an enviable one, he having been in many of the hardest fought battles of the war. He took part in the terrible carnage at Gettysburg; made the fearful march through the Wilderness; participated in the awful struggles at Fredericksburg, Chancellorsville and Cold Harbor; helped to storm Fort Steadman; fought before Petersburg and Richmond and witnessed the surrender of Lee at Appomattox. During all his service he proved himself a true and untiring patriot, and a soldier of which his country might well be proud.

During his life he followed the occupation of farming and later was engaged in the shoe business at Millheim but of late years he has been living a retired life.

He is survived by his wife and three children—Mrs. G. S. Frank, Mrs. Chauncey Frankenberger, both of Millheim, and Dr. Edwin, of Beavertown, Snyder county.

The funeral took place Thursday at 9:30 o'clock from the house. Interment in Fairview cemetery. The funeral sermon was preached in the Lutheran church at Millheim by Rev. Gearhart, assisted by Rev. Buck.

No other M. D. has so many cures to his credit. No other M. D. has made so many wonderful cures. So-called "hopeless" cases, chronic cases, "incurable" cases have all been cured, not once or twice, but thousands of times, by the use of that remarkable remedy

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery.

"My husband had been coughing for years and people frankly told me that he would go into consumption," writes Mrs. John Shireman, of No. 265 39th Place, Chicago, Ills. "In the spring of 1898 he took measles. He caught cold, the measles then settling on his lungs, causing such terrible coughing spells, we not only grew much alarmed, but looked for the bursting of a blood vessel or a hemorrhage at almost any time. After three days' coughing he was so weak too cross the room. The doctor who lived with us on the same floor did him no good. I went to the other end of the town and stated the case to a druggist, who then handed me a bottle of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. My husband's recovery was remarkable in its speed. In three days after he began using Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery he was up and around, and in two more days he went to work. Two bottles cured him."

Sick people are invited to consult Dr. Pierce by letter absolutely free of charge. Every letter is treated as strictly private and sacredly confidential. All answers are sent in plain envelopes without any printing upon them. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

Fire at Rebersburg.

The barn on the farm of Daniel Royer, located about one mile east of Rebersburg, was destroyed by fire Thursday morning. With the building was burned five cows, two steers and four calves; also a corn crib containing 100 bushels of corn, a pig pen, chicken coop and a lot of smoked meat and grain. The fire started in the feed entry and is supposed to have been started by a tramp. A buggy, belonging to the tenant farmer, was also destroyed. The property is partially covered by insurance.

—A large number of tickets have been sold and from the present outlook, the production of "Vermont will be one of the largest and grandest local productions seen in Bellefonte for many a day.

—It's folly to suffer from that horrible plague of the night, itching piles. Doan's Ointment cures quickly and permanently. At any drug store, 50 cents.

—Work on the new fair grounds began Tuesday. A large force of men are at work under M. M. Conley's supervision digging a new channel for the creek. Several hundred curiosity seekers daily visit the scenes of operation.

—Cigarette smoking is not to be allowed on the Exposition grounds in Paris. Violators of an order forbidding this sort of fumigation, recently issued by the Parisian Chief of Police, will be arrested and subjected to heavy fines.

—Another wreck occurred on the Beech Creek Railroad at Casteana, Friday night which resulted in the death of conductor Harry Marks and brakeman, Harry D. Caraher who were asleep in the caboose Both men were married and reside at Jersey Shore.

—A slight wreck occurred on the Bellefonte Central railroad Wednesday at Hunter's Park. The morning passenger train ran into some cars standing on an open switch, damaging the engine slightly and shaking up the passengers. No one was hurt.

—The management of "Vermont" request us to state that the best of order will be maintained at the entertainment to be given Thureday and Friday evenings of this week. There will be no repetition of the dastardly occurrence of last Thursday night.

—The ten months old infant child of Samuel Robinson of Tyrone died Saturday and was brought to this place Monday morning for interment. The funeral took place at 10 o'clock from the A. M. E. church, services being conducted by Rev. Woodson.

—An "Army Lunch," consisting of the famous army bean soup, baked beans, hard tack, coffee, and a variety of other good things, will be served by the ladies of the Methodist church, in the Arcade, on Memorial Day, between the hours of 11 a. m. and 1 p. m. Ice cream, cake, sandwiches and coffee will be served during the afternoon and evening. Everybody invited, especially the old veterans.

—Rehearsals to date show very clever work on the part of the one hundreds performers who will participate in the production Vermont. It is in its eighth successful year and its directors have trained over ten thousand people during its run. The entire paraphernalia is carried by he directors; the music, dances, and musical novelties are strictly up to date and are of the most refined and pleasing nature.

—J. Will Conley, chairman of the Decoration Committee of the Centennial Commission held a meeting of his Committee in the arbitration room in the Court House Tuesday evening. There was a full attendance of the members and deep interest manifested in the work of the Committee. Several attractive plans for street decorations are under consideration and with the assistance of a number of professional decorators who will be called here for consultation a fine display will undoubtedly lend a charm to the celebration in July.

COUNCIL MEETING

Businsss Transacted by the Borough Fathers Monday Night

The regular semi-monthly meeting of council was held Monday evening commencing at 7:30. President Gerberich occupied the chair with the following members present: Keller, Walkey, Wetzel, Derstine, Garrity, Knisely and Houser.

The minutes of the previous meeting were read and adopted and council then proceeded to hear petitions of citizens:

Burgess Blanchard reported the collecting of $14.50 in fines during the past month. He also suggested the advisability of having a new ordinance book printed containing all the new ordinances to date.

Bids for building the stone abutments to the new bridge over Spring creek on Willowbank street were received from Conrad Miller, James McCafferty, John Mignot and John Noll.

Street committee reported building plank crossing on Spring street· Howard street is being graded.

Water committee reported repairing various leaks in different parts of town. Pumps at Water works are running 24 hours. R. D. Wood, of Philadelphia, was awarded the contract for new water pipe to be laid on North Allegheny street. Commenced digging the ditche this morning on North Allegheny street with thirteen men employed. They recommended that the Brockerhoff estate be granted a rebate on their water tax for their house corner of Bishop and Spring streets as they had not occupied it for the past year.

Mr. Woods bid for furnishing pipe was the lowest and most explicit received and Mr. Keller moved seconded by Mr. Houser that the action of the Water committee in awarding the contract to R. D. Wood be approved. Carried.

Thomas Shaughensey Sr., was appointed market clerk for the ensuing year. Curb market is now in full blast and is well attended.

The contract for building the abutments for the new bridge was awarded to Conrad Miller.

The printing of new ordinance book was referred to the Finance committee with power,

Samuel Kerns asked that water be granted to his house on South Potter street. It was so ordered.

In regard to the request of citizens for a driveway bridge from South Potter street over the creek to Reynolds avenue, it seems that the land here belongs to private citizens and they refuse to give the privilege. A foot bridge will however be built at this point.

The following bills were approved and ordered paid:

Street Pay Roll	$88.42
George M. Mallory, blacksmithing	2.15
Bellefonte Fuel & Supply Co., coal.	68 59
T. H. Harter, 500 parchment notices.	2.00

Sunday Funerals.

The following action was taken by the ministerial association of Bellefonte at its last meeting, the 23rd inst, and is concurred in by the undertakers of this place.

It being a well known fact that Sunday funerals, in the majority of cases, should be avoided, and,

WHEREAS, such funerals so often impose an extraordinary and unnecessary amount of labor on those having them in charge, and so frequently interfere with the regular services of God's house, and thereby disturb and disarrange the stated worship of the Lord's day, and

WHEREAS, such funerals too often put on, not only the appearance of Sabbath desecration, but are made such by turning the holy day into a day of feasting and irreverence, therefore,

Resolved, That the ministerial association of Bellefonte proteste against the practice so common of holding funerals on the Lord's day, and can sanction such funerals only in cases of absolute necessity.

H. C. HOLLOWAY.
Secretary Ministerial Association,

Death of Mrs. Charles Bowes.

Maria, wife of Charles Bowes, died at her home near the Glass Works Saturday evening at 11:15 o'clock after a long illness. Death was due to a complication of diseases.

Deceased was born in Clarion, Clarion County, Pa., May 22, 1842 and had she lived until Wednesday would have been 58 years old. She was the daughter of Isaac Hampton.

She is survived by her husband Charles Bowes, and the following children; Charles H. of Philadelphia; Walter, of Bellwood; Harry, Mrs. John Keeler, Mrs. William Hill and Minnie, all of Bellefonte.

Three sisters and one brother also survive, namely, Mrs. Rudy Haines, of Hollidaysburg, Mrs. Reuben Bixler, of Patton; Mrs. Emiline Berdell, of Bellefonte and David Hampton, of Morristown.

The funeral will take place this afternoon at 2 o'clock, from the house. Services will be conducted by Rev. Allen Rhen, pastor of the United Brethren church, of which deceased was a member. Interment in the Union cemetery.

An Open Letter to the Burgess.

EDMUND BLANCHARD, ESQ.,
BURGESS.
BELLEFONTE, PA.

DEAR SIR:—

What are you going to do? Since you have taken charge of the office of Burgess of our town, you have displayed commendable zeal in bettering the condition affairs. We have perfect order. our streets are clean, our Policmen are well uniformed, and an addition to the force has been made, and every thing is as it should be, as far as these matters are concerned, but there are other things to be considered, for instance during the last entertainment at the opera house when there was alarge audience of our citizens, and the stage occupied by our own young, people, some miscreant gave the alarm of fire which if it had not been for some cool heads in the audience, would have caused a panic which might have resulted disastrously. Have you done any thing towards apprehending the person who caused this trouble?

If not what are you going to do? By the offering of a suitable reward there would be no trouble in bringing the guilty one to justice and this should be done. If one of our citizens is in an intoxicated condition on our streets doing no harm to any one but himself he is immediately arrested, taken to the Lock-up and fined by your Honor. or if one of our merchants should burn a little waste paper in front of his store on the street, he has to pay a fine also, or if a few people congregate on the side walk, your policemen order them to disperse, which is right and proper, but is the episode which occured in the Opera House to pass by unnoticed. Imagine if you can the fearful results which might have followed if the crowd had made a mad rush for the door it is too horrible to comtemplate. This week another entertainment will be given at the same place by home talent and from present indications the Opera House will be crowded. What assurance have we that the same scene will not occur again? The people who are there are our citizens and tax payers. Should they have any protection? They are the persons who pay the policemen, and have a right to demand that there lives are not placed in jeopardy by the action of some wretch, and it is your duty to see that protection is afforded, even if it takes a score of policemen to do so. Why not have your entire force right there, for by doing so, perfect safety may be assured. As a tax payer I ask this protection. What are you going to do about it?

Yours truly,
CITIZEN.

REBERSBURG RUMBLINGS.

Look out for a wedding in the near future in the west end of our town.

Rev. M. N. George, of Sharon, Pa., preached for the Reformed people on Sunday forenoon. Everybody was glad to greet and, see, him come back. He returned on Wednesday taking with him his father of Lehigh County whoexpects to spend the greater part of the summer at Sharon.

Our Postmaster W. S. Miller is slowly, improving, but very slowly, and is again able to be out.

L. B. Frank is greatly improving his home by placing a new porch in front of his house.

A new stone pavement has greatly improved the Lutheran parsonage.

Our worthy County Supt. C. L. Gramley is at present very busy holding County examinations.

George Corman has a severe attack of pneumonia.

Merchant Harter has received his spring goods. Call to see them.

Abe says "Des is ferdolt calt weder."

W. H. Corman attended court at Lock Haven the beginning of the week.

Our foundry is doing a booming business; are running full time.

"Dutch Bill" is sticking pretty closely to painting of late "Ich habe kenna durst."

Our carpenters seem to have any amount of work again this summer. Garrett refused several barns because of work. Bierly has his hands full and wants several more hands.

SPRING MILLS NEWS.

The Presbyterians installed their new minister Monday forenoon.

Landlord Ruhl replenished his livery by the addition of two horses he purchased from Dr. Braught.

Rev. John Wardon, the evangelist, is holding a series of revival services in Penns Creek church, and quite a lot of our town people attend. On Sunday he held bible reading and Y. M. C. A. meeting in the Cross church.

The admirers of candidates Foster and Kepler are hard at work for them, and are so evenly matched that Mr. Conley, of Potter township, may strike a compromise and win the delegates. Who knows? But may the best man win.

Wm. Hettinger, Esq., says Miss Hettinger is a welcome guest.

The recent rains and warm weather indicate a much better hay crop than was expected a few weeks since.

John Weaver, jeweler, is with us again.

Extensive arrangements are being made by the veterans and sons of veterans to make this memorial day the most entertaining and instructive ever held in this vicinity. They will be very ably assisted by the secret orders, Sunday schools and citizens of the community. Appropriate music is being prepared and the children, big and little, are taking a very earnest part by recitations, songs, etc. The speakers will be, at Green Grove Rev. Brown, at George's Valley Rev. Kirchner, at Farmers' Mills Sumner Hosterman, Esq., and at Spring Mills Wilbur F. Reeder, Esq.

It does seem funny that a young lady should take a fancy to small boys, but so it seems, as a certain one had three different ones in a week's time, neither of which reached her shoulder. Wonder if she dislikes moustaches?

If anybody tells you Spring Mills is behind the times, tell them you don't believe it, as we have a grist mill, two grain elevators and coal yards, four general stores, a grocery store, a hardware store and grocery store, a confectionery store and restaurant, a creamery, a skimming station, a planing mill, three ice cream parlors, two blacksmith shops, the best schools in the country. a bicycle factory, two barber shops, several cobblers, and quite a few other places of employment and business that space forbids to enumerate. There is work for everybody here, and everybody here works.

PLANS ARE PROGRESSING

For the Overhauling and Remodeling of the Methodist Church and Parsonage.

The plans for the remodeling of the Methodist church and parsonage are progressing very nicely, and before very long these much needed repairs will be an accomplished fact.

A meeting of the board of trustees was held in the lecture room Monday evening, at which the plans for the parsonage were submitted by architect Robert Cole and adopted. The present unsightly parsonage will soon be transformed into something more modern and attractive.

The plans include a handsome new porch along the whole front of the house, ten feet wide. A slate roof will cover the house and porch, and three new dormer windows will be placed in front on the third story. The present old style windows will be replaced by the more modern single sash windows. To enter the parsonage from the front you will pass through a handsome new hardwood door, with beveled plate glass, into the vestibule, and from there through a leaded glass door into the house proper. In addition to this the brick and wood work will be repainted and restained and a new cornice added all around the house. Some changes will also be made to the interior of the house, which will greatly add to its cheerfulness and the comfort of the pastor and family. All this work is under charge of a committee composed of the pastor and L. A. Schaeffer.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the church are also taking a hand in these improvements. Mrs. F. W. Crider is the president of the society. They have given out a contract for a stone walk in front and all around the house, and stone steps up to the front door. Mrs. P. Gray Meek is the chairman of the committee in charge of this part of the work.

The plans for remodeling the church have not been fully decided upon as yet, although a pretty good idea of what is needed has been decided upon. The remodeling and repairing committee has been appointed and is composed of the following gentlemen: Rev. W. P. Shriner, the pastor; Gen. Daniel H. Hastings and F. W. Crider. These gentlemen will decide upon the plans and submit them to the trustees for approval and adoption. Work will be pushed at once at the parsonage and church, and will be completed as soon as possible.
